Two Dead In Reno Blasts

RENO, Nev. (UP) — Firemen shot high-pressure jets of water today into the smoking rubble of what had once been a prosperous street in the heart of Reno—until leaking gas destroyed it in three fiery blasts.

A series of three explosions and the ensuing fire Tuesday killed two persons and injured 42 others. At least five big buildings were destroyed and a score of others were damaged in varying degrees.

The dead were identified as Mrs. John DuPratt, 60, of Reno, and Frank Spina, 48, owner of a shoe factory that was gutted in the blast. Spina apparently was blown clear across the street and under a parked car by the force of the explosion.

Police reported five persons were missing However, a check by the United Press accounted for four of them.

Victims In Streets

City officials estimated the damage at $3 million.

Reno's famed gambling casinos remained open for business during the holocaust. One witness, Margaret Jones, an airline stewardess, said patrons in the Riverside Hotel "were still gambling and didn't seem concerned at all."

But a block away across the river was a fearful scene. Flames spouted from the windows and roofs of buildings, broken glass littered the street and scores of men and women lay in the streets. Many screamed in fright or agony —or both.

After it was all over, firemen were thankful that the toll of dead was not worse. The odor of escaping gas had served to warn many persons away from the area. Scores of persons evacuated several buildings moments before the accident.

Guardsmen Stand By

Firemen were unable to search the rubble immediately for more bodies. Early today, it was still smoking, such was the intensity of the flames when they raged at their height.

The scene of the holocaust was First and Sierra streets, one block north of the Truckee River.

Nearly 150 Nevada National Guardsmen were ordered to the scene to evacuate an eight-block area and to prevent looting. Eventually, people were allowed back into the area except for the worst damaged blocks.

Police said the blast was the result of a leak in an underground gas main. The leak had gone on for at least an hour and a half before the first explosion, allowing a dangerous quantity of natural gas to collect in the area.

Mrs. Irene Morgan, 65, was driving her automobile past Paterson's Department Store when the explosion occurred.

"I was just driving by the store when I thought someone had hit me on the head with a rock," she said. "I couldn't understand how, because all the windows were closed.

"Then I noticed that the windshield was blown out and the stuffing of the seats was flying in the air."

Defendants in Murder Cases Plead not Guilty

In Washington County Court action yesterday, defendants in two murder cases and a defendant in a voluntary manslaughter charge in the third wrongful death all pleaded not guilty.

During the arraignment, Judge George T. Cummins refused one motion for the continuances of the cases. The motion was in the case of James E. Lythle, of Finleyville, who is charged with the murder in the December 6 stabbing of Lena Geltz.

Lytle's counsel asked for additional time for preparation and also time to have his client examined by psychiatrists.

Walter Butler, Jr., of Longeloth, pleaded innocent in the fatal shooting of his father last Nov. 18.

A Canton Township man, Philip Moten, pleaded not guilty of the manslaughter charge in the September death of Jerry Eddins.

In another arraignment yesterday, Donald Hallam, of Charleroi, pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated. He was given a one-year suspended sentence and fined $200 and costs.

Budget Hearings Planned

HARRISBURG (UP)—The General Assembly today prepared for early committee hearings on Gov. George M. Leader's $1,604,338,735 General Fund budget in the wake of the vows of Republican leaders to "hold-the-line" against any new taxes.

House Majority Leader Albert W. Johnson (R-McKean) said the House Appropriations Committee will begin hearings next Monday, when members of the governor's official family will be called in to justify their proposed expenditures.

Johnson estimated it will take from six to eight weeks to determine where and how any cuts can be made in the state's basic fiscal blueprint while Senate GOP leader Rowland B. Mahany (Crawford) said the lawmakers will have "a good idea" of what the budget stands for within a month.

Comment on the administration's proposal for the record budget which Leader said would entail $108,613,231 in new revenue ranged from the pleased reaction of Republican lawmakers at its conciliatory attitude to the verbal lashing Democratic Sen. Joseph J. Yosko (Northampton) gave to the governor on his tax stand.

"The governor gave us a budget but shirked his duty in not recommending a tax plan based on ability to pay in accordance with the Democratic platform," Yosko said. "He favors elimination of the stamp plan in the sales tax. He should have gone a step further and asked for repeal of the Republican sales tax."

Raps Repealers

Yosko also blasted the governor for asking repeal of almost $50,000,000 in taxes on business.

"I'm opposed to reduction or elimination of corporation taxes while at the same time we are asked to increase taxes on the consumer," he said.

Mahany also questioned whether business could be given tax relief if the line were to be held against any new taxes.

Mahany said the efforts of the Legislature should be bent towards "meeting the needs of this budget without levying any new taxes."

"But if you are going to keep from raising taxes, you can't very well abandon ones now in existence," he added.

One of the sharper reactions to the proposed budget came from Johnson.

"Governor Leader has forgotten all about the problems of the 10,000,000 people who must pay the bill for this $2-billion budget," Johnson said. He termed the results of the November elections in which the GOP won control of both legislative chambers "a mandate from the people to hold the line on taxes."

"We can do this by squeezing out the enormous amount of fat that Governor Leader in the space of two short years has accumulated in the operation of our government," he said.

Senate Minority Leader John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland) who led the administration's fight for a tax program of its own choosing in the last Legislature but has

Ike Believes Israel Will Withdraw from Gaza Strip

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower said today he believes Israel will withdraw her forces from the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba in response to the United Nations' appeal.

Mr. Eisenhower carefully avoided any direct mention of U.S. support for sanctions that might be imposed against Israel if it does not withdraw. But he said the United States is committed to support the United Nations.

The President told his news conference this country is doing everything it can to reach a Middle East settlement and it is not merely trying to stop fighting there. The whole range of complaints, including the question of violation of Israel's sovereignty, has to be considered and adjusted, he said.

The President spoke as the United States stepped up its fast-moving drive to win new Arab support and understanding for his plan to use U.S. troops, if necessary, to protect the Middle East from Communist penetration.

On other Middle East problems, Mr. Eisenhower:

—Said he would deplore any delay by Congress, just for the sake of delay, in considering his Middle East doctrine. But he would not quarrel with the rights of Congress to investigate important issues.

—Said he firmly believes his talks with King Saud of Saudi Arabia and other Middle East leaders help keep the peace by clearing away much of the underbrush of misunderstanding about U.S. policies and plans in the area.

—Officially confirmed that talks are under way with Britain on a possible meeting between himself and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Details are not completed so he would not comment on London reports that the meeting will be held soon in Bermuda.

Soon after the news conference opened, Mr. Eisenhower was asked if he believes Israel will withdraw from Gaza and the Gulf of Aqaba, and if the United States might join "in applying economic sanctions" if it does not.

The President said Israel was established by the United Nations, and that more than 70 U.N. member nations say it should withdraw. He added that he believes Israel has a decent respect for the opinions of mankind, and he believes it will withdraw.

He said he would not speculate on the future actions by the United Nations or the United States. But this country, he said, is com-

GREENSBURG, Pa. (UP)—FBI agents arrested Daniel Thomas Amend, Jr., assistant secretary-treasurer of the Barclay - Westmoreland Trust Co. today, on charges he embezzled $13,500 of the bank's funds.

Bank officials said shortages of approximately $18,000 were uncovered during a state examiner's audit and Amend admitted his connection with the missing money Tuesday night.

A federal warrant for Amend's arrest was issued this morning and he was scheduled for arraignment before US. Commissioner Alexander L. McNaughter in Pittsburgh this afternoon.

The FBI complaint specified Amend embezzled sums on Aug. 12, 1954, July 28, 1955, and Dec. 23, 1955.

Free Hunting Privileges Asked In State House

HARRISBURG (UP) — Free hunting privileges for oldsters and property rights for teenagers have been proposed in the House of Representatives.

Rep. Harry W. Price Jr. (R-Mifflin) sponsored bills to grant free fishing and bird hunting licenses to sportsmen over 65. Rep. Harry A. Naugle (R-Somerset) introduced proposed legislation to allow 18-year-olds to enter contracts affecting their personal and property rights. Under present law the youths have to wait until they are 21.

Other House bills included:

A proposal to repeal the Pennsylvania Loyalty Act of 1951 by Reps. John J. Welsh (D-Philadelphia), Herman Toll (D-Philadelphia) and John R. Gailey Jr. (D-York).

Another bill to recreate the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors, by Reps. Walter T. Kamyko (D-Allegheny) and Leo J. McLaughlin (D-Philadelphia).

Naugle also sponsored a bill to bring employes of civil defense organizations under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Mrs. Boothe was found safe in nearby Washington at noon.

A. S. Flemming To Be Replaced By Gordon Gray

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower today announced the resignation of Defense Mobilizer Arthur S. Flemming.

The President announced at his news conference that he would nominate Gordon Gray, now assistant secretary of defense and former president of the University of North Carolina, to succeed Flemming.

Other highlights of the President's news conference:

—He predicted that Israel will withdraw her forces from the Gaza Strip and the area of the Gulf of Aqaba lying in Egyptian territory in accordance with the resolution of the United Nations.

—He believes that his conferences with King Saud of Saudi Arabia have produced progress toward a peaceful and, eventually, united Middle East.

—He said the United States should ship oil to Europe to the fullest capacity of available transportation facilities. He held out the possibility that if this does not take place the federal government may have to step into the situation.

—He renewed his support of the four point administration civil rights program before Congress. He said there is nothing in it inimical to the rights of any person and that he regards the legislation as very decent and needed.

—He again voiced strong support for the mandatory six-month basic training ordered for National Guard enlistees beginning April 1. In his opinion, he said, the 11 weeks' alternative plan proposed by the National Guard Association would not answer the defense needs of the nation.

—He said the likelihood of attack by any nation possessing new and powerful weapons of massive destruction on another country diminishes every year. He said that as the understanding of new weapons increases it becomes less likely that the weapons will ever be used.

—He said Vice President Richard M. Nixon is being kept constantly abreast of developments within and out of the government so that in the event that—as the President put it—the grim reaper removes Mr. Eisenhower from the scene, Nixon could take over without any delay.

—Mr. Eisenhower, in response to a question, said he feels as well today as he did before his September, 1955, heart attack.

—He said political affiliation will not enter his consideration of a successor to Associate Justice Stanley Reed. Mr. Eisenhower said that while his feelings are not inflexible, he prefers if possible to fill vacancies on the high court from jurists now sitting on the federal bench or on state supreme courts. Of the three high court vacancies he has filled so far, Mr. Eisenhower has named two Republicans and one Democrat.

Bill Would Free Toll Bridges by This Summer

HARRISBURG (UP) — Three Republican legislators today introduced legislation for freeing the state's 10 intrastate toll bridges this year.

Reps. Adam T. Bower (Northumberland), Harvey P. Murray (Snyder), and Louis A. Pursley (Union) sponsored a bill asking the state Highways Department to lift the tolls on May 31.

The proposal also provides that the department sell all buildings and property acquired when the bridges were purchased eight years ago. The revenue would be used to pay off the bonds on the bridges and any surplus funds would revert to the Motor Vehicle Fund.

However, the state Treasury Department has already announced that the bonds would be cleared up and the bridges freed by May 31, four years ahead of schedule. The spans were purchased from private owners in 1949 for 18,500,000 but toll fees have steadily paid off the bond indtetures.

The bridges involved are: Clark's Ferry, Duncannon; Market St., Harrisburg; Eighth St., Allentown; Ellwood City - Koppel; Sunbury; Charleroi-Monessen; Minsi Trail, Bethlehem; New St., Bethlehem; Point Marion, and the Walnut St. Bridge, Harrisburg.

McShane Hits Back at County Macing Charge

Patrick H. McShane, superintendent of highways in Westmoreland County, said that a request made Monday by Attorney Joseph M. Loughran, of Greensburg, for a state investigation of "coercion and macing" was done entirely for "political gain."

McShane was hitting back at Loughran because the latter, a candidate for Court of Common Pleas, charged that McShane forced highway employes to purchase $5 tickets for "smoker" parties staged at New Dale Park Tavern in Ruffsdale, which is owned by the highway superintendent.

In a telegram to Secretary of Highways Joseph J. Lawlor, Loughran asked for a full and immediate investigation of his charges against McShane.

In his wire, Loughran, who resigned as first assistant district attorney to oppose his former boss, Alexander Sculco, in the May 21 primaries, asked Lawlor to investigate "the matter of coercion and macing by the superintendent of highways . . . in behalf of certain judicial candidates . . ."

Loughran has said that one of the "certain judicial candidates" is Sculco. He also said in a news release that "the revenue from these parties . . . is being placed in a fund to aid my opponents."

"I would welcome an investigation by anyone," McShane said, because there is no truth to the charges that any state highway employes had been maced at any time, nor do I intend to." He added that Loughran's charges were "only used for political gain."

McShane said the request for an investigation came as a surprise. He said the parties were "gatherings by the employes themselves" and that they got all they could eat and drink for $5.

"I had nothing to do with the tickets," he concluded.

Meanwhile, Loughran is insisting the investigation be conducted.

Rocket Center Leaks Evidence Faces Colonel

ATLANTA (UP)—The 3rd Army today turned evidence of information leaks from a top-secret rocket center over to a special officer who will decide whether an accused colonel should be court-martialed.

Col. John Nickerson, formerly assigned to the Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., was confronted Tuesday with charges he had violated security regulations, 3rd Army Headquarters announced.

Col. Wilbur Wilson, deputy chief of staff of the 18th Airborne Corps, was assigned to study the evidence and to make recommendations of possible disciplinary action to Lt Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, 3rd Army commander.

The alleged information leak was first reported in Washington on Jan. 7 by Army Secretary Wilber Brucker. At the time the Army said other persons also were under investigation.

It was understood that the information involved Defense Secretary Charles E Wilson's assignments of roles in the nation's guided missile program to the various branches of military service.

$21,000 Goal Fixed For '57 Easter Seal Campaign in County

A goal of $21,000 has been fixed for the 1957 Easter Seal campaign, it was announced today by the Westmoreland County Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

A full campaign organization of volunteer workers is being readied to conduct the drive between March 15 and April 21, according to Mrs. A. V. Crookston, president of the Society.

"Our job of helping the handicapped in Westmoreland County is getting bigger all the time", Mrs. Crookston declared. "Our campaign this year is aimed at maintaining the good program we already have and making it available to still more of the children and adults who need it so urgently.

The Westmoreland society maintains a full time staff and treatment center at 310 E. Pittsburgh street, Greensburg, and extension facilities in New Kensington and Monessen. Parent counseling, therapy, braces and summer camp for crippled children are some of the other services available through the local Easter Seal group.

Easter Seals will reach 50,000 homes in Westmoreland County during the drive, while a tag day, coin containers and other features will supplement the mail appeal.

The local drive will be a part of the State and National Easter Seal campaigns, which for 36 years have provided Easter Seal Societies with their principal income for the support of services to the handicapped.

Approximately 90 per cent of funds raised during the annual campaign finances services within the state where raised. The remainder goes to support a national program of services, education and research.

Asks Repeal of Loyalty Oath Law

HARRISBURG (UP)—State Sen. Harry E. Seyler (D-York) asked the Legislature Monday to repeal the state's loyalty oath law.

The 1951 act requires all public employes to take oaths affirming that they are not members of "any organization that advocates the overthrow of the government" by unconstitutional means, and requires all state-aided schools to submit reports on measures they have taken "to determine whether it has reason to believe that any subversive persons are in its employ and what steps have been taken to terminate such employment."

Every year, some $14 million damage is done to London, England, by smog and grit from factory chimenys.

Communist Party 'Scare' in The United States Is Over

(The second of three dispatches on the Communist Party in the United States.)

By ROBERT E. JACKSON

NEW YORK (UP) — Is the Communist Party in the United States still a menace?

Many people ask that question in seriousness today. The subject of Communists in America, once in bannerlines every hour, has ceased to be a big story, election issue or source of fear. The "scare" is over.

There are those who say that the pulverizing blows taken by the party on de-Stalinization and Hungary and the effective counter-action of the FBI have erased any threat to security.

But others, including FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, fear the danger is still there in a new form.

Crash Program Launched

In the late 1940's and early '50's, spurred by the sensational trials of Alger Hiss, the Rosenbergs and top Communists, a "crash" program turned up Reds in the government, in unions, in Hollywood, in the armed forces and in some places where there were none. A few men sized on the cold - wartime rush to "clean out the Reds" to frighten the daylights out of the American public. Some innocent victims were caught up.

The entire country now is taking a sober second glance at the conscience - wrenching problem of providing liberty yet security, of guaranteeing constitutional rights without risking the safety of the republic.

President Eisenhower's Department of Justice emphasizes that despite the long delays in board and court actions affecting Communists, it prefers this to any hasty infringement of civil liberties which would violate the Constitution.

While it did not make membership in the party a crime, the Communist Control Act of August, 1954, in effect outlawed the Communist Party. The Subversive Activities Control Board ruled in 1953 that the Communists are "puppets" of the Soviet Union. The control act required the Reds, as "agents of a foreign power," to register their membership and source of funds. It denied them passports and cut off government labor negotiation machinery to Red-led unions.

Membership Falls Off

Yet it is 1957, and the party still has not complied with the law to register Chiefly because of delays caused by repudiation of testimony by "turnabout" witnesses, the issue is still in the courts.

Five top Communists released from jail terms which they served for advocating a conspiracy were rearrested immediately on charges of being members of a group dedicated to the overthrow of the government. But they are free on bail and doing business as before.

The administration opposed the control act, objected to outlawing the party and won't telegraph its next punches.

In this calmer atmosphere, many Americans have forgotten that there are still Communists among them.

There aren't as many as before. Membership, down two-thirds in 10 years, has fallen from 80,000 to a mere 20,000. Sympathizers have diminished from 600,000 to under 200,000. The Daily Worker has suffered a "catastrophic" loss of ads and a dip in circulation from 38,000 to 10,000.

In The "Red"

The Party's treasury is as red as its emblem. It spent $1.5 million on bail and legal fees in the trials. It says it is running a $200,000 annual loss. The government raided its key offices last year, charging the party with owing back taxes.

The party's grip on trade unions, once a source of funds, is slipping. The Reds say they led one-fifth of the unions in the U.S. in 1942. Today, they say, it is only three per cent.

What danger is there from this? Says Hoover:

"The Communist conspiracy is as dead now as it was before... We relax our vigil at our peril... The American public must not be lulled into complacency by the new Communist propaganda line... The current Communist tactics do not change the basic goals of Communist conquest."

Hoover noted that 10,000 Communists in China grew to 6 million and conquered a nation of half a billion. Italy's Communists dwindled to 20,000 to increase again to two million.

Observing the cataclysms caused by the Nazi-Soviet pact, a New York newspaper ran a series called "The Collapse of American Communism." That was in 1939.

Crucible Steel Record Sales; Lower Earnings

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Crucible Steel Co. today reported record sales but slightly lower net earnings for 1956, and president Joel Hunter forecast a good year in 1957.

"The demand for most of our products remained at a high level all during 1956," Hunter said. "Demand is currently off for some products but not enough to seriously reduce operations. If as we believe, customers' inventory adjustments are largely responsible, Crucible should have a good year in 1957."

Crucible reported preliminary 1956 net income of $12,767,625, slightly below 1955 earnings of $13,208,602. Net sales totaled $263,922,898 to cross the quarter billion dollar mark for the first time, compared with 1955 sales of $237,715,380.

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—State Rep. Elmer Mortonson, the father of 13 children, testified Tuesday in favor of broadening the powers of teachers to use corporal punishment.

Rock 'n Roll Riots Of Joy in Britain

LONDON (UP)—Police called reinforcements into central London today to forestall new teenage riots of joy at the presence of American rock 'n' roll king Bill Haley.

Haley arrived Tuesday for a three week tour of Britain and ran into scenes of frenzied adoration that injured one person and badly damaged his car. It took the efforts of 50 policemen to free him.

He gives his first concert at London's Dominion Theater tonight and a spokesman at Tottenham Court Road police station across the street said reinforcements were being drafted to handle the situation.

Just "Fantabulous"

"We don't want any trouble," a police spokesman said.

Haley expressed the same sentiments at a press conference Tuesday night. He admitted he and his wife had been badly frightened when the mob surged around the car, crushing a police woman.

But Haley told the news conference he was convinced rock and roll has no greater effect on juvenile delinquency than any other kind of music.

"It was just fantabulous" said an article under his byline in the tabloid Daily Mirror

"What else can I say?"

The Daily Mirror chartered a special train to bring Haley and 400 fans up to London from Southampton Tuesday. Haley also was mobbed in Southampton when he debarked from the Queen Elizabeth.

Whatever Haley couldn't say the newspapers said for him. The arrival of the Chester, Pa., musician and his Comets made every front page in town including the London Times.

The Times, which ignored the arrival last year of Liberace, gave half a column on its main newspage to Tuesday's battle at Waterloo Station.

The Times said the teen-agers were "not a very picturesque lot," but "of course all their English reticence vanished as their hero stepped from the train; and Mr. Haley now knows how London teen-agers can welcome an idol."

Nixon Asked to Represent U. S.

WASHINGTON (UP)—The White House announced today that President Eisenhower has asked Vice President Richard M. Nixon to represent the United States at ceremonies in March celebrating the independence of the Gold Coast in Africa.

The Gold Coast is the first British colony in tropical Africa to receive independence. On March 6 it will become a member of the British Commonwealth.

The independence ceremonies will run from March 3 to 10. March 6 is the effective date of independence.

Specific travel plans for Nixon were not available beyond the fact that he will be in Accra, the Gold Coast capital, on the day of independence. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Nixon and an official U.S. delegation.

James Malone to Succeed Owlett

PMA Will Elect on Feb. 26

PHILADELPHIA (UP) —James F. Malone, 52, former Allegheny County District Attorney, has been nominated by the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association to succeed the late G. Mason Owlett as president, it was announced Tuesday.

Formal election of a president will take place Feb. 26 in Philadelphia at the annual meeting of the association.

Malone served as district attorney of Allegheny County from 1952 to 1955 and was former state insurance commissioner in the cabinet of Gov. James H. Duff from 1947 to 1950.

He now is general manager and counsel for the PMA and its insurance companies in charge of activities in Western Pennsylvania. He also was slated to succeed Owlett as executive vice president of the PMA insurance affiliates.

Malone, graduate of Duquesne University Law School, was admitted to the bar in 1927 and served as solicitor for the board of assessment and revision of taxes in Allegheny County from 1928 to 1931.

He was assistant Allegheny County district attorney from 1934 to 1939 and was chairman of the county Republican Executive Committee from 1944 to 1950.

Owlett, 64, first Pennsylvania to be elected to five successive terms as a member of the National GOP Committee, died Jan. 25 in a hospital here of pulmonary embolism, a heart ailment.

He was president of the PMA since 1943.

Shortway Action Losing Support, Legislator Says

HARRISBURG (UP)—The majority leader of the state House of Representatives said today there is increasing sentiment against construction of the proposed Keystone Shortway under the new federal interstate highway system.

Rep. Albert W. Johnson (R-McKean) said all the limited access road between Sharon and Stroudsburg would be to "get traffic through Pennsylvania at a rapid pace between New York and Chicago."

"More and more responsible Pennsylvanians are gradually coming to the realization that building the Keystone Shortway will be bad for the state," he said. "And the people of Philadelphia are beginning to realize that providing a direct, free route across the state would bankrupt the port of the city of Philadelphia."

Johnson, whose home is in one of the northern tier counties, declined to comment on a resolution introduced last week by four representatives from that region criticizing the inclusion of the shortway in the interstate system.

wrecked in the blast, said he smelled a strong odor of gas an hour and a half before the first explosion. He called the Sierra Pacific Power Company ". . .Get the hell over here and turn it off."

Harrisburg Man to Head Church Council

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (UP) — Dr. Claude S. Conley of Harrisburg, Synod Executive of the Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania was elected president of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches as the Council closed its 46th General Assembly today.

Bishop Frederick Warnecke, Bethlehem; Rev. William Gray Jr. and Howard G. Taylor Jr., both Philadelphia; Mrs. Charles W. Hauser, Harrisburg; Mrs. Roy L. Winters, Spring City and Paul J. Schaumburg, Reading, were elected vice presidents.

Rev. Paul T. Slinghoff, Sinking Spring, was named secretary and Ivan L. Mease, Hershey, treasurer.

Other elections were Rev. Frederick Maser, Philadelphia, chairman of the Division of Evanglism; Rev. James Moyer, Carlisle, chairman Inter-Church Relations; Rev. G. A. Oswald Palmerton, chairman Social Relations; Rev. Francis Allison, Wilkes-Barre, chairman Town and Country Churches; Mrs. Gaius Slosser, Pittsburgh, chairman United Church Women.

The 200 delegates adopted a Message to the Churches program asking Pennsylvania to provide better child care and welfare legislation and additional chaplains in state institutions.

The Message asks church people to accept all races to fill membership.

Delegates also acted on plans for construction of a United Church Center on Route 230 just east of Harrisburg.

The Center, to provide quarters for the State Council of Churches and the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association operating as the State Council of Christian Education is designed to meet the needs of the 50 church bodies representing 19 communions operating together on a state level.

Big Mystery Over Duke of Edinburgh's Beard

GIBRALTAR (UP)—The Duke of Edinburgh sailed into Gibraltar harbor today aboard the royal yacht Britannia but there was no immediate word on whether he had shaved off his beard for the queen.

Lt. Cmdr. Michael Parker, who resigned as the Duke's personal attendant because he did not want to involve the royal family in his marital troubles, left the ship shortly after it docked and took off for London by plane.

Parker was beardless but there was no indication whether the Duke also had shaved off the luxurious whiskers he allowed to grow on his world tour the past four months.

There has been wide speculation on whether he would keep the beard for his meeting with Queen Elizabeth in Portugal Feb. 18.

Informed sources have said Queen Elizabeth's rigid opposition to divorce led to Parker's resignation.

Parker's wife announced Saturday that she and the 36-year-old Australian had separated and she would seek a divorce. The news was cabled to Parker aboard the Britannia.

Bill to Create Fund to Handle Liability Claims

HARRISBURG (UP) — A bill to create a special fund to handle liability claims resulting from accidents involving uninsured automobiles has been introduced in the House of Representatives legislative mill.

The proposal, introduced by Reps. Eugene Gefland and Herbert Fineman, Philadelphia Democrats, would set up a fund to handle all claims over $200. The measure provides set payments to handle specific claims and judgements for various injuries and damages caused by uninsured autos.

The fund would receive revenue from all automobile owners and insurance companies doing business in the state. Motorists owning uninsured cars would pay $2 annually into the fund, insured auto owners would pay $1 and insurance companies would be levied a percentage relative to the amount of policies they hold.

Heating Co. Asks For Rate Increase

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Windber Heating Co. has asked the Public Utility Commission for a $15,400 annual rate increase, effective April 1, for some 221 steam heat consumers in the Windber area of Somerset County.

The company said all rates would be raised approximately 30 per cent under the new schedule. The firm said the additional revenue is "urgently required" to meet higher operating costs.

'Sun Glasses' for Windows Proposed By Arnold Company

ARNOLD, Pa. (UP)—American Window Glass Co. has brought into full operation new facilities for production of glare-reducing gray glass with the aim of putting "sun glasses" on the buildings of the nation.

A new, $1½ million glass-making "tank" now is turning out 50-tons a day of eye-resting window glass, which does not distort the color of light passing through it, but reduces its intensity by as much as 45 per cent.

The new glass furnace is the outgrowth of nearly five years of "planning and experience" by American Window Glass. It had its inception in the demand from television set manufacturers for a filter glass which would reduce the glare from the newly-developed aluminized picture tubes.

While this market was relatively small, American Window officials sensed a big demand in the building and construction field and went into the gray glass business in a big way.

With the new "tank," or furnace, now in full production, American Window Glass is turning out the new glare - cutting glass for general use in sheets as large as 6½ by 150 inches.

American Window Glass first met the demand of the television industry for a non-glare glass to place in front of the picture tube by sandwiching a gray plastic between sheets of bonded glass. But the demand of the building industry for single sheet gray glass set the company's researchers to work.

The company had produced ordinary colored glass, but specifications for the new gray glass called for light transmission range which would not vary by more than three per cent.

After constructing an experimental furnace at its Jeannette plant, the company decided last July to go ahead with a full-scale facility here.

mitted to support the United Nations.

Immediately after his news conference, Mr. Eisenhower conferred with the third Arab leader to visit with him within a week—Foreign Minister Charles Malik of Lebanon.

Mr. Eisenhower already has won endorsements in principle of his plan from the two other Arabian officials visiting in Washington — King Saud of Saudi Arabia and Crown Prince Abdul Ilah of Iraq.

Those two leaders, who do not always see eye to eye, planned an important meeting of their own late today at the President's guest house across the street from the White House.

Approved By House

Malik, generally regarded as pro-Western, endorsed the "Eisenhower Doctrine" some time ago but wanted to get more details on the proposal from the President and to discuss Middle East problems with him.

Under the doctrine, now before Congress, the President would be authorized to use U.S. military forces, if necessary, to halt overt Communist aggression in the Middle East and to grant military and economic aid to the area.

The House already has approved the plan. It now is being considered by the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees.

The two committees called a group of diplomats who are serving or have served in the Middle East for questioning at a closed-door hearing today. They included George Wadsworth, U.S. ambassador to Saudi Arabia; Joseph C. Green, former ambassador to Lebanon; and Henry T. Byroade, ambassador to South Africa and former envoy to Egypt.

Historic Importance Seen

Diplomats regard today's Saud-Illah conference as having historic importance. Their nations have been feuding for years. The first and only meeting of leaders of the two countries since the 1920's occurred last Sept. 20 when King Faisal of Iraq visited King Saud in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia.

The United States regards the Saud-Illah meeting as "a continuation of the rapprochment (cordial relations) between the two oil-rich nations, both of which have strong ties with the West.

American officials hoped the Saud-Illah meeting will further narrow the breach between the two nations. Close cooperation between them would mean that Communism would have one less area of tension to feed upon.

been at odds with Leader recently, had a terse "no comment—yet" when asked his opinion of the fiscal plans.

"He read it very well," was the only comment made by Sen. M. Harvey Taylor (R-Dauphin). Taylor, Senate president pro tempore, is credited with scotching the Democratic tax plans in the last session.

Former House Speaker Hiram G. Andrews (D-Cambria), who also has been at odds with the governor recently, took issue with Leader's observation that both Republicans and Democrats perhaps have been lax concerning good government.

"It (good government) is a cause which a majority of the members of the General Assembly have endeavored to support for lo' these many years," Andrews said. "There is no section of the Democratic party or those who serve it that has a monopoly of righteous intent."

Outside of the budget address, little business was transacted by either chamber at Tuesday's session.

The House, by a voice vote, gave final approval to a resolution calling on the governor to give the Dauphin County district attorney any evidence of "criminal wrongdoing" in the handling of a special $1,170,000 Labor and Industry fund for possible grand jury action. The Senate added "criminal" to the wrongdoing phrase before enacting the proposed resolution Monday.

Leader recently fired former Labor and Industry Secretary John R. Torquato after disagreeing with Torquato's methods of administering the fund — mainly the hiring of employes on the fund payroll.

Britain, U. S. in 'Full Accord' on Objectives

LONDON (UP)—Defense Minister Duncan Sandys today announced "full accord" with the United States on Anglo-American defense objectives, including "particular" cooperation on guided missiles.

Sandys disclosed to the House of Commons what was admitted from the official communique on his discussions with American defense officials in Washington last week: The United States and Britain would pool missile research as they pooled atomic developments during World War II.

The defense minister said experts now are working out the details for the supply of "certain American weapons." According to unofficial reports, these include the United States' latest intermediate-range missiles.

Sandys flew to Washington last week to fill in Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson on Britain's plans to cut back defense spending to counter the post-Suez economic crisis.

He specifically sought agreement for the supply of U.S. missiles while British scientists joined with Americans in developing the "ultimate weapons"—the intercontinental ballistic missile.

the transports he operated small-type amphibious landing craft and took part in eight invasions in both the European and Pacific theatres of operation.

Following his discharge from the service in 1946, Snyder became associated with the C. A. Derby Construction Co. of Monessen. Several months later he decided to go into business for himself. Shortly, afterwards, he went into a parnership with Peter Toussaint, of Monessen, to form the present Toussaint and Snyder Contracting Co.

Snyder and his wife, the former Mary Benyak, and their three children live at 22 Pleasant drive. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Snyder, of 1426 Grand boulevard. The elder Snyder has been a member of the Monessen Police Department for 23 years and at one time served as chief of police.

The 33-year-old Snyder is a member of the Allison-Lescanac Post 1190, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Thomas McKee Post 28, American Legion; Aerie 2399, raternal Order of Eagles; Greater Beneficial Union 175; Chamber of Commerce; United Brotherhood of Carpenters 1563; Monongahela Valley Building Trades Council; Kiwanis Club, and the Holy Name Society of St. Leonard Church.

Snyder's Democratic opponents, thus far, are incumbents John Molnar and David Victoria.

14-year-old Boy Hurt; Takes Car Without Asking

GREENSBURG, Pa. (UP)— A 14-year-old boy, who took his father's automobile without permission, was injured critically Tuesday night when the vehicle skidded into a tree.

Another 14-year-old boy riding in the car also was injured.

Westmoreland County Hospital said the young driver, Vennor Weaver, Greensburg RD6, was in poor condition early today. He suffered a possible skull fracture, possible internal injuries and head cuts.

His companion, Larry Miller, also of Greensburg RD 6, was listed in fair condition with a possible skull fracture and a hand injury.

The accident occurred two miles north of here on Route 119, which was slushy and slippery.

At the time of the accident, Vennor's parents, Charles and Ruth Weaver, were at the Joseph Ott Funeral Home in Irwin to view Frieda Hensler, 18, of Irwin, a Meadville college coed killed in a plane crash near Johnstown, Pa., Sunday. The Weaver and Hensler families are friends.

Larry's parents were notified of the accident in New Mexico where they were vacationing. They were returning home today. The father, Earl, is a farmer.

Funds to Make Fayette Shrine

HARRISBURG (UP)—A bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives to provide $20,000 to move the Searights Toll House to the Westmoreland-Fayette Historical Society as a state shrine.

The proposal was sponsored by Rep. E. Gadd Snider (D-Fayette). The toll house is now located near Uniontown on U.S. Route 40.

Meanwhile four Luzerne County lawmakers entered a bill to have consider construction of a bridge across the Susquehanna River between Kingston and Plains Twps. in their country.

Inspectors Return to Mine Blast Scene

BISHOP, Va. (UP)—Seventeen state and federal mine inspectors returned to the Pocahontas Fuel Company's vast soft coal mine today to seek the cause of an explosion which killed 37 miners two days ago.

William A. Fullerton, special assistant to the president of Pocahontas, said the inspection team found no clues in a nine-hour survey of Tuesday. The inspectors will open a hearing today, he said.

The inspection team also planned to interview some of the 140 men who escaped to safety through a railroad tunnel when the blast wrecked the elevator shaft where the victims were working, he said.

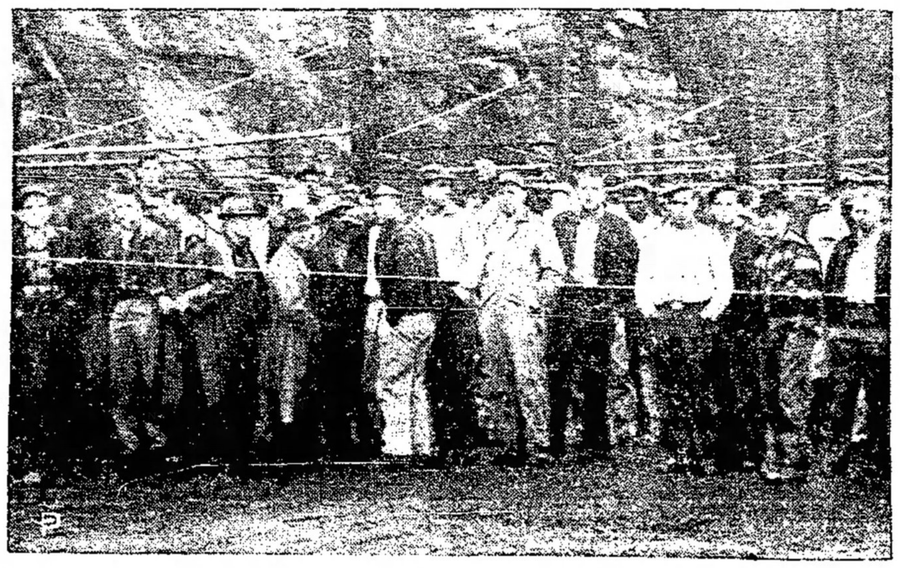
The inspectors, accompanied by fire bosses, have already checked tunnels not involved in the explosion and approved resumption of mine operations, probably later today, he said.

At the same time, 17 state and federal mine inspectors investigating the explosion returned to the spot some 300 feet from the mouth of the sprawling soft coal mine where the blast occurred.

An official of the Pocahontas Fuel Company, which operates the Bishop mine that straddles the Virginia-West Virginia border, said the investigators would spend at least one more day seeking the exact cause of the accident. They searched the mine for nine hours Tuesday.

Individual funeral services for the 37 victims of the blast began today.

"Some of the services are scheduled today, some tomorrow, some the next day and some aren't even scheduled yet," a mine spokesman said.



THEY WAITED IN VAIN FOR GOOD NEWS — Anxious relatives and friends stand behind a police cordon as they await word from inside a blast-ripped coal mine at Bishop, Va. The word was: "There were no survivors."

Four Are Held in Tax Evasion

Uniontown Man Is Included

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A federal grand jury today indicted two Bradford, Pa. business men, a Johnstown lawyer, and a former Fayette County banker on income tax evasion charges.

The government accused George G. Blaisdell, 61, treasurer of the Zippo Manufacturing Co. at Bradford, of evading payment of taxes on income of more than $70,000 for the years 1950, 1951, and 1952. S. J. Brill, 57, assistant secretary of the cigaret lighter firm, also was named with Blaisdell in separate indictments accusing them of filing false returns on the corporation's earnings.

The grand jury also indicted Milo K. Ruse, Uniontown, former president and director of the First National Bank at Pt. Marion, Pa., on charges of failing to pay taxes on income totaling $16,000 for the years 1950 and 1951. Ruse pleaded no defense n 1953 to charges of embezzling funds of the Pt Marion bank and was placed on probation.

Edward J. Harkins, 61, a Johnstown attorney, was charged with failing to file tax returns for the years 1953 and 1954 when the government estimates his income totaled $15,000 a year.

The federal grand jury returned a total of 42 indictments, of which 12 were income tax counts

Frank Nathan, former Pittsburgher involved in OPA violations during World War II, also was indicted on charges of income tax evasion Nathan now lives in Florida.

'NEXT YEAR . . .' — A tax cut can be made next year if the government exerts an effort to "get more defense for less money," Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey tells the Senate-House economic committee in Washington. He said a tax cut for all would be the best way to promote economic growth.

Youth Shoots Mother; She 'Picked on Him'

MEDIA, Pa. (P) — Thirteen-year-old John Dougherty Jr., remained in the custody of juvenile authorities today after police said he admitted shooting his mother in the back in a plot to kill both his parents because they "picked" on him.

The shooting took place Saturday night in the Dougherty home at Ridley Park, Pa., according to Earle H. Allen, chief of the Delaware County detectives.

Formal charges against the gangling teen-ager were deferred pending completion of the police investigation.

Mrs Virginia Dougherty, 36, the boy's mother, shot as she watched a television program, was reported in a slightly improved though still serious condition with a rifle bullet wound of the liver and lung.

The detective said the youngster told him he did not shoot his father because an empty cartridge jammed in the rifle and he could not re-load it.

Allen said the boy admitted Tuesday that he planned to kill both parents and run away to Florida in the family car.

He first told police the rifle was discharged accidentally in the cellar of the Dougherty home, but admitted the shooting when no bullet hole was found in the floor, Allen said.

The slender 6-foot boy told detectives he was angered because his parents did not believe his stories of attending basketball games on various occasions. He said they "picked on him."

He told police he sneaked down a stairway from his room with the rifle while his parents watched a television program Saturday. Their backs were to him.

Allen said the boy told him he made a slight noise accidentally, and his mother turned as he aimed the rifle at her. He hurriedly told her he was going to the cellar to clean the weapon.

Then, when she turned again to the TV set, he fired the shot which struck her in the back.

Allen said the boy ran to the cellar and attempted to reload the gun. Then he ran back upstairs where his father, thinking the shooting was accidental asked him to aid his mother while he telephoned for an ambulance.

Detectives said the boy first told them the shooting occurred when he was engaged in target practice in the cellar. The absence of a bullet hole in the floor led to his admission of the shooting, Allen said.

New Flooding Threatened in Georgia, Alabama

By UNITED PRESS

New flooding loomed along swollen rivers at scattered points today in North Georgia and Alabama. Weathermen warned of possible serious conditions if rains continue.

Crests of three to five feet above flood level were expected at Rome, Ga., and at Gadsden, Ala., on the Coosa River system while the Oconaluftee River in North Carolina reached its highest level in years.

Families prepared to flee their homes at some lowland points in Georgia and Alabama.

More than a week of serious flooding in the Southeast claimed its 16th victim Tuesday with the death of a woman in a fall into rain-swollen Soco Creek on the Cherokee, N C., Indian Reservation.

The other deaths occurred in an Appalachian Mountain region embracing parts of West Virginia, Kentucky and Virginia in which heavier floods caused more than one billion dollars damage last week.

Guard Rail on Route 40 Saves Bus Tragedy

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP) — A Greyhound bus carrying 12 persons slid 100 feet down a snow-covered mountain road Tuesday night, crashed into a guard rail and came to rest at a tilt atop a 60-foot drop.

Three of the 11 passengers aboard the Pittsburgh-to-Baltimore bus were injured when the vehicle struck the guard rail

The mishap occurred in a mountainous area on Route 40, about 20 miles east of here. M L. Rice, of Frederick, Md., the driver, said the motor cut as the bus was descending a long grade in third low gear.

The injured passengers, brought to Uniontown Hospital, were Mary Valentine, 1, of Route 16, Fairmont, W. Va., and Mr and Mrs. T. J. Collins, of Morgantown, W. Va.

Miss Valentine was detained with shoulder injuries and shock.

Collins, 80, and his wife, 4 were treated for similar injuries and released.

Bill Calls for Medial Barriers

HARRISBURG (UP)—The House Highways Committee today considered a proposal for construction of medial barriers the entire length of the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

A bill introduced by Republican Rep. Maurice Goldstein and Democrat Jules Filo, both of Allegheny County, stipulates that the barriers would have to be of sufficient strength and height "to effectively prevent vehicular traffic moving in one direction from crossing the medial strip."

Similar legislation has been introduced without success in previous Legislatures. The Turnpike Commission has erected barriers on certain sections where there are dangerous curves.

NEW AMBASSADOR — New U.S. ambassador to West Germany will be David K. E. Bruce, it is reported. Bruce, a former assistant secretary of state, will succeed James B. Conant.

USW Local in Protest to Use Of Advertising

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UP)—A local of the United Steelworkers Union has protested to USW President David J. McDonald against use of dues funds "to purchase unwarranted publicity" in local newspapers, it was disclosed today.

The action by Local 1630, representing workers at the Symington-Gould Corporation's nearby Depew plant, was believed to have stemmed partially from recently - raised dues which have aroused disfavor in numerous USW locals throughout the country.

The protest letter, sent to McDonald and signed by Louis Arcese, the local's recording secretary, referred to USW advertisements that listed the union's gains in the last 20 years.

"Publicizing these gains and advantages in our local papers implies to us," said the letter, "that the incumbent international officers are using our dues money for publicity purposes to their personal advantage in their campaign for re-election."

Beck Out of Subpena Reach

NASSAU, Bahamas (UP)—Dave Beck, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, was registered today in a palatial waterfront suite of the Emerald Beach Hotel, almost 200 miles out of the jurisdiction of a federal subpena.

Beck, who has been feuding for weeks with Sen John L McClellan, (D-Ark) is the key witness in a Senate investigation of labor racketeering. He failed to testify before McClellan's investigating subcommittee in March on the grounds of illness.

Beck denied he left the United States to avoid a subpena But in Washington McClellan and Robert F. Kennedy, staff counsel to the investigations subcommittee, expressed surprise on hearing that the Teamsters' leader was out of the country.

Pays to Appear In Traffic Court

DETROIT (UP)— Peter Stina, 50, said today he was charged and booked by police for trying to promptly pay a fine for jay-walking.

Officers, who said he had attempted bribery, reported Stina tossed a $20 bill at them when they handed him the ticket.

Plane Victims Die of Burns

NEW YORK (UP)—The twenty passengers killed in the crash of a Northeast Airlines plane Friday died of burns and not from injuries received in the crash, a medical report showed Tuesday.

Dr Milton Helpern, chief city medical examiner, said "not one died of injuries from the impact of the crash." He said if there "hadn't been a fire not a single death would have occurred."

Helpern said after autopsies performed on all the victims that fire generating carbon monoxide, rendered the passengers unconscious and they were unable to escape the flames.

Nearly all the 81 survivors were injured and most suffered burns when the DC6A cracked up on Rikers Island minutes after it took off from LaGuardia Airport in a snowstorm.

Group to Fight Race Problems in Schools

HARRISBURG (UP)—Two Philadelphia Democrats have introduced a bill designed to outlaw discriminatory practices in Pennsylvania schools and create a Fair Educational Opportunities Commission to police admission procedures in educational institutions.

Sens Benjamin R. Donolow and Charles R. Weiner, proposed that all schools be prohibited from excluding students because of "race, punish, deny facilities or otherwise discriminate against any student" for those reasons.

Their bill would permit the establishment of schools by religious faiths "exclusively or primarily" for students of their own denomination, but stipulates that "in such institutions students otherwise qualified should have equal opportunity to attend without discrimination because of race, color or national origin."

The FEO Commission, consisting of five members appointed by the governor with the consent of the Senate, would be authorized to make annual visits to all schools "for the purpose of examining and studying the procedures used in the selection of their students."

The commission would also investigate and adjust all complaints of unfair educational practices forbidden by the act, and, where informal methods fail, to hold hearings, subpena witnesses and require the submission of any records relating to the complaint.

Weather Plays Nasty Tricks On Nation Today

By UNITED PRESS

The weather played nasty tricks on the nation today, pouring more rain over parts of the flood-stricken Southeast and dumping heavy snow on some western areas

Generally unpleasant weather, heralded by fog. Drizzle and showers, settled over a section of the nation, ranging from the Mississippi Valley eastward to the Atlantic Coast

Weathermen forecast showers for the southern Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the Carolinas. Rain also was expected over the Gulf states from Florida to Texas and north into Kansas.

Frosty air and snow flurries puffed into the northern Great Lakes region, but the previously chilled Northern Plains warmed up.

Almost half the residents of Warden, Idaho, were hustled from their homes Tuesday by snow slides which tumbled down mountain slopes, killing at least one person.

A series of avalanches throughout Idaho temporarily blockaded roads, but most were passable by night time. Slides covered places near Wallace, Burke Canyon and along the Idaho-Montana border.

Plans were completed for the Ladies Night and 32nd anniversary celebration to be held on Feb. 19.

British Soldiers Wounded in Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UP) — Six British soldiers were wounded today in a resurgence of EOKA (Union with Greece) bombing attacks.

Four members of the British security forces were slightly wounded when insurgents hurled two bombs at their vehicle from the roof of a house in the village of Ardhana. Two others were injured when a bomb exploded on the road between Episkopi and Limassol.

Proposed Thruway Expensive

ERIE, Pa. (UP)—The proposed 46½-mile Erie County Thruway will cost an estimated $40 million, according to state Highways Department Engineer William Troxell.

Troxell said the limited access road, to be known as Route 79, will cross Erie County south of here and eventually will be linked to the New York Thruway to the east and the Ohio Trumpike to the West.

He testified at a one-day hearing here Tuesday. A transcript will be sent to the U S. Bureau of Public Roads, which approves projects for inclusion in the Federal Interstate Highways System.

The highway will be constructed in 11 sections, each to be bid on separately, Troxell said. He said initial work should be under contract by mid-April and the remainder no later than fall. The four-lane, no-toll highway will have 14 interchanges.

It was also learned at the hearing that widening of Route 19, major artery between Erie and Pittsburgh, is contemplated. According to H. S. Gahagen, district engineer of the Highways Department, and James Lee, federal engineer, discussions are underway for broadening the Route in the vicinity of Pittsburgh and "possibly as far north as Mercer County."

It is unlikely, however, that Route 19 could be included in the interstate system, Lee said.

Mayor Arthur Gardner said he will go to Harrisburg within the next few days to learn why "Erie is being sold down the river." He said Erie's port development program would be dealt a "serious blow" unless the northern section of Route 19 also is improved.

House to Check Charges State Payroll Is Up

HARRISBURG (UP)—A House committee today received a proposal for an investigation of charges that Gov. George M Leader has 6,000 more employes on the state payroll than previous administrations.

The measure calls for a six-member House-Senate committee to check the validity of the charges because "economy in government" is a vital issue to the taxpayers.

The resolution, the latest in a series of Republican sponsored investigations was proposed by Rep. Willard F. Agnew Jr. (R-Allegheny), Maurice H. Goldstein (R-Allegheny) and Paige Varner (R-Clarion).

Bucks County Reps. Margarette S. Kooker and Marion V. Keller, both Republicans, sponsored a resolution to investigate the recent boost in gasoline and fuel oil prices. The measure calls for Congress to determine if the hike was fair and take appropriate action if it was not.

Soviet Economic Plan Having Difficulties

MOSCOW (UP)—Qualified observers viewed the Soviet Union's 1957 economic plan today as a frank admission the Russian economic system is running into difficulties.

One diplomat said the plan submitted to the opening meeting of the Supreme Soviet Tuesday showed the United States does not have as much to worry about Russian competition as it thought.

"The Russians are not finding it as easy as they thought" to catch up to the United States production capacities, he said.

Maikhail A. Pervuhkin, the man who was given the job of revamping the Soviet economic plan a month ago, presented a report which called for a one-third cut in the rate of Russia's industrial expansion.

This reduction was regarded here as the most significant since World War II.

He said industry should be expanded 7 1 per cent. Industry was increased 11 per cent last year.

He explained the government had decided on more modest goals to avoid "excessive strain" in trying to achieve them.

Soviet Finance Minister Arseni Zverev told the Supreme Soviet that the 1957 arms budget would be cut about six per cent from 1956. He said this was made possible by a cut in Soviet armed forces.

Queen Dina — King Hussein

HIS QUEEN TO DIVORCE HIM — As if Jordan's King Hussein didn't already have enough trouble, word comes that his 28-year-old wife, Queen Dina, from whom he has been separated, will move for a divorce. Reasons: the 21-year-old king "has been seeing too many other girls," and his mother and Dina don't hit it off too well. This is not only the beginning of the end of the marriage, but coincides with what may be the beginning of the end of Jordan, too. When Britain finally is out of Jordan, cash and protection and all, it is theorized the nation may wind up being partitioned among Arab neighbors.

State Budget Sharp Contrast To Other Years

HARRISBURG (UP) — The streamlined physical makeup of the administration's 1957-59 state budget is in sharp contrast to the fiscal blueprints of other years.

All the facts and figures pertaining to the state's General Fund are contained in a neat, 21-ounce, 208-page folder. Every dollar to be spent, from a three-quarters of a billion for public schools to $750 for a portrait of Gov. George M. Leader to be hung with others in the ante-room of the governor's office, is earmarked in the budget.

The performance-type budget makes it much simpler to find any one item and compare it with similar appropriations in previous years. It is a product of the shake up instituted by the governor in the state's accounting methods.

Two Boys Dead; Four Hurt in Tenement Fire

CHICAGO (UP)—Two boys, both about six years old, were killed and four persons were injured today in a tenement building fire on the city's South Side.

The victims were not immediately identified. One of the youths was dead on arrival at Michael Reese Hospital and the other died hours later of burns suffered in the blaze.

Critically hurt was Arthur Ashley, 58, who jumped from a third story window. Also injured were Claude Mitchell, 54, his wife, Lucy, 48, and John Ewell, 42.

The early morning blaze routed 32 persons from the three story building. Four persons jumped from windows to escape the flames.

Authorities said the two-alarm fire broke out under a back stairway and may have been touched off by an arsonist.

Ewell, a resident of an adjacent building, suffered cuts about the head when he plunged through a door glass while entering the building in a rescue attempt.

The blaze caused an estimated $5,000 damage.

Haiti Strike Continuing

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UP) —Sen. Louis DeJoie predicted the Haitian Legislature would stick to the Constitution and proclaim senior Supreme Court Judge Jean Baptiste Cineas provisional president today.

DeJoie was so confident his campaign for Cineas to replace Joseph Nemours Pierre Louis was successful that he broadcast an appeal to his followers Tuesday night to end the country's paralyzing general strike.

(Pan American Airways in Miami reported the U. S. Embassy at Port au Prince asked the airline to evacuate some 175 U S citizens stranded by the strike Pan American said it would begin an airlift today to Kingston, Jamaica, Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, and Miami.)

The strike was nearly 100 percent effective Tuesday despite a joint plea by five other presidential candidates for an immediate end to the walkout.

King Saud Is Big Tipper

WASHINGTON (UP) — When King Saud likes the service at a restaurant, he lets 'em know it.

In fact, sometimes the tips cost him as much as the bill.

For example, the Saudi Arabian monarch and a party of about 50 dropped by the Normandy Farms Restaurant in nearby Maryland for a bit of lunch.

The check ran to nearly $750. But the tips ran as high if not higher.

First the king tipped his waitress with a gold wrist watch.

Then he presented another gold wrist watch to the restaurant's manager.

And then he left $500 to be scattered about among the rest of the restaurant's employes.

However, apparently all this is only a beginning.

When he arrived, the king was reported to have 15 trunks filled with gifts. And how much room can a few watches take up?

Israel's Attitude Embarrassing U. S.

ISRAEL'S stubborn and rather puzzling refusal to cooperate with the United Nations in its peacemaking efforts in the Middle East is causing the western democracies, and particularly the United States, no end of embarrassment.

One by one Israel has now rejected six formal appeals from the U. N., all adopted by overwhelming votes in the Assembly, that it withdraw its armed forces from Egyptian soil where they established themselves in what was universally recognized as a lawless aggression.

As a result of the latest Israeli defiance, the delegates of the United States to the U. N. are hearing privately from all sides that the U. S., as the particular friend and benefactor of Israel among the great powers, must now see to it that Israel begins to behave like the law-abiding nation her leaders pretend her to be.

It remains to be seen, however, whether American influence with the Israeli government is in any way commensurate with the massive benefactions, both governmental and private, which have poured from this country to Israel since the birth of the latter nation.

THE ISRAELI government justifies its policies on the grounds of self-preservation. It must keep its troops on Egyptian soil, it says, to prevent attacks on Israel from Egypt, to guarantee that Israeli shipping will not be molested in the Aqaba Gulf and, as a kind of foot-in-the-door, to insure that when the Suez Canal is reopened, Israel's ships will have access to it.

All of these aims are, of course, legitimate. Israel has good reason to fear incursions on its territory by Egyptian gangs, although now certainly Egypt has reason to fear attack from Israel. And Israel's rights in international waterways, including the Suez Canal, are no less than those of other sovereign nations. Israel's friends would like to be in position to help her assert all these aims and rights.

Before any nation's rights, in the Middle East or elsewhere, can be regarded as secure, however, there must be established in the world an order based on some semblance of law and justice. And in the establishment of this kind of order, it is the democratic nations which are taking the lead. This comes naturally to them because it is one of the definitions of democracy to say that it is an order based on equal justice under the law.

But here is Israel, professing to be an outpost of democracy in an area where there is very little of it, stubbornly refusing to comply with the efforts of the U. N. to establish the basis for a just settlement of the complex disputes of the Middle East. Instead of the rule of law, Israel prefers the rule of the gun.

To say that the Israeli attitude is embarrassing to Israel's friends, especially the United States, is to state the matter mildly. It recalls the wise observation of a French politician of long ago: "Defend me from my friends; I can defend myself from my enemies".

The Inflation Menace

FORMER President Herbert Hoover has added his voice to the others which have been warning the nation against the consequences of inflation. Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey said a couple of weeks ago, following the introduction of another record-breaking peacetime federal budget, that if the trend of federal spending continues and if inflation is not effectively checked, the United States will have another economic depression "that will curl your hair". To which Mr. Hoover, with sardonic humor, makes the observation:

"Mine has already been curled once — and I think I can detect the signs."

(To appreciate this remark, younger readers may need to be reminded that Mr. Hoover was President when the great depression struck in 1929 and for many years bore — quite unjustly — the political onus of that event.)

What mainly bothers Mr. Hoover is the acceptance by so many economists and businessmen, who ought to know better, of the notion that "we can't have another depression" because we now know so much more and have so many clever laws that we did not have in 1929.

Mr. Hoover maintains that economic laws have a way of being rather inexorable. And one of these laws may be fairly stated like this: What goes up must come down.

There is no mistaking that this threat of inflation is a serious one. President Eisenhower was recognizing that in his inaugural address when he urged business and labor to be cautious in their policies with respect to prices and wages.

But whether voluntary restraint, plus wise management of federal policies involving credit and money supply, are going to be enough to check the inflation trend is something that must bother anyone who concerns himself with the problem.

Tito Refuses To Become Soviet Tool

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Marshal Tito, the un-Soviet, semi-Communist leader of Yugoslavia, whom some 160 congressmen would like to keep from visiting the United States, is showing himeself determined not to be a tool of the Kremlin.

Mr. Drummond

Ever since his bold, riskful break with Stalin in 1948 Tito has stood implacably for his country's complete independence from Soviet influence, for freedom to modify its Marxist policies as it chose and for opposition to Soviet imperialism.

But in recent weeks, with Poland and Hungary seriously out of hand, the Kremlin has been trying to bludgeon or blandish, win or entrap Tito into a tactice which would help Moscow put the clamps more strongly on dissident Communists in the satellites.

This, it is now learned from one who knows the facts, was the real purpose of the 16 day, Khrushchev-style of "brainwashing" which the Russian Communist party boss tried to apply to Tito toward the end of last year, first in a visit to Belgrade and without a break in a "vacation" hideaway in the Crimea.

Tito Says 'No'

Marshal Tito said no to Khrushchev at the beginning, in the middle and at the end of the conversations. And here, it can be reported on excellent authority, is what the Yugoslav President was saying no to:

Remember that the Communist parties in Poland, Hungary, East Germany and elsewhere in the satellites were restive, unsure of their own public opinion and intent upon getting free from Kremlin domination.

Khrushchev's anxious concern was to cut back most of the independence Moscow had previously promised by conceding just enough to prevent a blow-up but retaining control of the international Communist movement.

He sought to sell Tito on the idea that while the satellite Communist parties could have freedom to apply Communism to their internal affairs as they saw fit, they should be ruled by Moscow in all their relations with other countries.

Khrushchev offered bait. He pledged Tito, if he would go along and help the Kremlin carry out such a line, to respect Yugoslavia's full independence in both internal and foreign affairs.

In other words, as Khrushchev put it, Tito could have the Kremlin's guarantee of independence in all matters if he would help the Kremlin retain control over the satellites in most matters.

Flat Rejection

I don't know whether it was hard or easy for Tito to make the decision he did — a flat rejection.

It could have been easy because Khrushchev was not offering Yugoslavia any independence it did not already possess. And Tito has had enough experience to know that Soviet promises last only as long as convenient.

It could have been a hard decision because Kremlin policy was becoming more belligerent as the satellites became more restive and an explicit guarantee of Yugoslav independence might be an added protection for a considerable period.

But the all-important fact remains that Tito resisted Khrushchev to the end, he refused to compromise his support for complete independence for all the satellites.

He refused to become a tool of Soviet foreign policy, or Soviet control over the satellites.

Instead, he riskfully told Khrushchev that he would stand openly and speak out openly to support the efforts of the satellites to gain their freedom from Moscow.

It is worth nothing that these facts about the Khrushchev-Tito talks were not leaked nor planted by any Yugoslav official or, for that matter, by any American official. They come from a thoroughly informed but wholly detached source. This inside account of what happened was not volunteered but came out in response to questioning.

All of which suggests that Tito is not seeking to capitalize on his rebuff to Moscow. But it seems to me a good thing to have it come out.

Oil and Politics in Near East

By DREW PEARSON

(Editor's Note—Simultaneous with the Near East debate in Congress and the visit of King Saud, Drew Pearson is writing a series of columns on the Near East, its oil, and its politics.)

WASHINGTON — For approximately ten years after the end of World War I, American oil companies jockeyed with the British for possession of the greatest oil prize in the world — Iran, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, and the small sheikdoms at the head of the Gulf of Persia. For another ten years, American oil companies also jockeyed among themselves.

Mr. Pearson

Today, American oil indirectly is jockeying with Congress over economic aid to the Near East, over fear of Arab nationalization, and over the spectre of Soviet encroachment.

Officially, Secretary of State Dulles, and the Eisenhower administration are doing the congressional jockeying. But the oil companies remain the vitally interested parties in the background.

Of the importance of these oil fields there can be no debate. Of the need of keeping them out of Soviet hands there is no argument. But there is difference of opinion as to who should pay the bill — the oil companies or the taxpayers. There is also debate on whether it's the oil companies which dictate our Near East policy or the Eisenhower administration.

Finally there is debate over how far the armed forces of the United States should be pledged to protect a private American investment. Or if the armed forces are to be used, should Near East oil remain an unregulated, unsupervised private investment.

All these points, involving the risk of war, are so important that the Senate, believing the public is entitled to all the facts, has voted an investigation of American policy dating back through the Truman administration.

First Aid to King Saud

This writer also has been digging out some of the Near East facts the public is entitled to know about. They go back to the first loan and lend-lease grant to the father of the present Arabian monarch, King Ibn Saud, in 1941, shortly before Pearl Harbor.

This aid was extended by the Roosevelt administration because it too recognized the importance of Arabian oil and because the American companied, which then controlled the Arabian-American Oil Co., offered to supply oil to the U. S. Navy at the relatively cheap price of 40 cents a barrel.

The entire transaction, which took place under the Democrats, was later investigated by the Senate Investigating Committee, then under the Republicans. The Republican criticism of a Democratic administration for using taxpayers' money for the oil companies was just as rigorous as the present Democratic criticism of Republican policies in the Near East.

The Senate committee found that the Texas Company and Standard of California, then the two chief investors in Aramco, has hired James Moffett, former president of Standard Oil of New Jersey and a close friend of Roosevelt's, to secure American economic aid.

King Ibn Saud had found his budget unbalanced and claimed that his royalties from Aramco were insufficient. He wanted an extra $6,000,000 annually from them during the war. The European war had been in progress for two years and American entry was considered inevitable. So in return for a promised cheap price for oil for the U. S. Navy, an RFC loan of $30,000,000 was advanced to the British for King Saud. Extra loans and lend-lease funds totaling $99,000,000 were extended later.

"U. S. Was Defrauded"

"To induce the grant of aid to the Saudi Arabian government," the Senate Investigating Committee found in 1948, "the United States under a proposal dated April 16, 1941, at prices based on fuel oil at 40 cents per barrel.

"When the United States needed the oil because of its war demands," continued the Senate report, "notwithstanding these prior proposals, the companies offered the Navy fuel oil at $1.05 a barrel on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. The Navy was forced to buy the oil on these terms.

"The oil companies were under moral, if not legal oblication to disclose to the naval procurement officers their previous proposals for the sale of oil submitted to the President."

But, charged the Senate report adopted under Republican leadership, they "exploited the government by exacting high prices for their products, despite the assistance to Saudi Arabia at the companies' behest to protect and preserve the companies' concessions."

The Senate committee went on to tell how the oil companies claimed they had doubled their royalties to King Saud, and observed: "The U. S. Government clearly was defrauded because the royalty payments were not doubled."

It was on the basis of these Senate charges that the Justice Department brought suit against the American companies which comprise the combine for an overcharge of $67,000,000.

Oil Profits Zoom

Some of the senators now investigating the proposed Dulles doctrine for the Near East, compare circumstances today with those of 1941 when Aramco maneuvered the first American aid for the father of King Saud. Today King Saud's treasury is also low, as a result of curtailed oil shipments curtailed by the Suez stoppage, and he seeks American economic aid.

In this connection, the senators have before them the recent profits of the oil companies, as compiled by the House Small Business Committee, showing their profits increased the amazing total of 37 per cent during the first thre years of the Eisenhower administration.

Profits of Standard of N. J. shot up from $519,981,000 in 1952 to $709,310,000 in 1956. Socony-Mobilo il went from a profit of $177,092,000 in 1952 to $207,434,000 in 1955. Texas Oil jumped from a $141,821,000 profit in 1952 to $262,730,000 in 1955. Standard of California shot from $174,030,000 in 1952 to $231,139,000 in 1955.

These companies also enjoy special tax write-offs, such as the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance, which other taxpayers cannot get.

Another column on American oil, the Near East and the Dulles doctrine will follow shortly.

Red Paper Now Says Stalin 'Anti-Semitic'

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP) — The de-Stalinization of Russian Communism has taken a new turn with charges that the late Generalissimo was guilty of violent anti-Semitism.

These charges were published in the New York Communist newspaper, the Daily Worker. They were a reprint of a report published by British Communists after a delegation of Jews had investigated in the Soviet Union the story of anti-Semitism during the Stalin regime.

Mr. Wilson

The British investigating delegation included J. R. Campbell, editor of the London Daily Worker, and Hyman Levy, described as a Marxist philosopher and mathematician. The investigators bluntly accused the Stalin regime of seeking to liquidate by violence the Jewish culture of the Soviet Union.

The Black Years

"The years 1948-51," the report said, "were known among them (Russian Jews) as the black years, the period during which many Jews were dismissed from their posts, Jewish poets and writers were arrested and charged with treason and executed; Yiddish disappeared from the streets and market places."

Husbands were arrested, tortured and murdered, the report continued, and whole families were transported to remote areas of forced labor. The investigators insisted, however, that since Stalin's death a real effort was being made to make amends for the anti-Semitic campaign and to prevent a repetition.

The British investigators were not satisfied that Stalin should bear the blame alone. Anti-Semitism under Stalin, they concluded, may have been a boldover from the Czarist society which the Communists liquidated by wholesale murder after taking over during World War I from the revolutionary Kerensky government.

However that may be, the report of British investigators now substantiates rumors consistently current during the Stalin regime of violent anti-Semitism in the so-called classless Communist state. This anti-Semitic violence was taking place at the same time American Communists were making American Jews and other American minorities special targets of their propaganda and recruiting campaigns.

American Communists scorned and scoffed at reports over the years of anti-Semitic violence in the Soviet Union. Communist publications brushed such away as examples of the overall plot of world imperialism against Communism.

Communists themselves now proclaim the truth of those reports, but accompany the acknowledgement with assurances that it shall not happen again. That, of course, remains to be seen since the present acknowledgement also is accompanied by admission that the seed of anti-Semitism was widely and deeply sown in Russia and is not yet all reaped.

Rugged Individualism Found Among Dogs

By MARGARET LATROBE

As a social asset, Bootsie, our Kerry Blue pup, is hopeless. She thinks she is either an airedale or a red setter. Her two best friends are these breeds, and I suppose her assumption is natural. They roam the neighborhood freely, certainly never trotting to heel on short and swanky leads. She sees no reason why this burr-and-brush existence should not be her inalienable right. Again, a reasonable assumption.

Mrs. Latrobe

Well, we had better things in mind for Bootsie. With proud lineage in back of her (the papers got lost before she was given to us, but no matter — a fine heritage ought to speak for itself) beautiful conformation and a sweet disposition, Bootsie would make her family proud. Nothing in dogdom was too good for our curly black pet. If other (less attractive) beasts wore jewel-studded collars, went to the best "finishing" schools where they teach swell manners, and had regular appointments for haircuts, could we do less for our angel?

But she knew those papers were lost, that even if the most eligible of husbands were chosen (not for cheap, either) to father her offspring, we couldn't dig up a family tree to impress folks with the impeccable social position rightfully theirs. She knew rhinestone collars, a pseudo-poodle hair-bob, and fluffy leggings were not for her. Try as we would to wriggle her into a stylish dog coat (well, maybe it wasn't mink) she wriggled right out of it.

Her sad and pleading eyes seemed to say, "These trappings are for aristocrats — not me. Buy me a plain cloth jacket at the bargain counter. I ain't proud."

Owners of other (less attractive) dogs would put on airs about their pets' fine tastes in food. Proper gourmets, these pooches. "My dog just adores caviar . . . " they would say. Caviar? Bootsie would glance at them pityingly, and continue scavenging the kitchen floor for old potato chips. Or, "would you believe it, my dog will eat nothing but rare roast beef, with mushroom caps . . . " Another disdainful glance from Bootsie who knows a social climber when she sees one. Mushroom caps, my eye. Anything in the garbage can in anybody's garage, she figured, is better. Just good, plain food and plenty of it. She hasn't even read any of those elegant food magazines — just to show you how disinterested she is in the good life.

The final blow was, of course, her choice of soul mate. Here we had arranged a fine wedding and all, paid her dowry, even placed future pups for adoption among our friends. What happens? She elopes with a highly ineligible nobody, that's what.

The moral to this sad tale (if there is one) may be, don't count your chickens until you've led an old dog to water . . . or is it, don't put all your pups in one basket?

Behind The News—

Visit of King Saud Seen As Diplomatic Success

By CHARLES M. MCCANN

The visit of King Saud of Saudi Arabia to President Eisenhower promises to be a big diplomatic success.

There seems to be good reason to believe that the Arabian monarch's conferences in Washington may lead to improvement in the entire Middle Eastern situation.

Saud appears to have been convinced, for one thing, that the Eisenhower Doctrine aimed at combatting Communist penetration of the Arab countries is a real contribution to Middle Eastern stability.

He has intimated strongly that he will tell the leaders of other Arab countries that the President's plan should be accepted.

More Cooperation Seen

As regards to the direct United States-Saudi Arabian part of the Washington talks, it seems certain that agreement for cooperation between the two countries will be worked out.

Under this agreement, the United States would sell Saudi Arabia a large quantity of arms. The figure of $250 million has been mentioned, but is said now to be too high.

In return, Saud would renew for five years the agreement under which the United States maintains a big air base at Dhahran on the Persian Gulf.

There was strenuous opposition by many people in the United States to King Saud's visit.

Blasted By Wagner

Mayor Robert Wagner of New York City made himself the spokesman for some of these opponents by announcing publicly that he would refuse to extend the usual courtesies to the President's guest.

Wagner based his opposition on the allegation that Saud is anti-Jewish and anti-Roman Catholic. The existence of slavery in Saudi Arabia also was cited.

But Saud seems to have made an excellent impression personally in Washington.

But regardless of any opposition, the President's decision to invite Saud to Washington appears to have been well-advised.

Saud is a big figure in the Arab world. He may well become a bigger one than President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear father, grandfather and great grandfather, John Wisyanski, who died four years ago today, February 6, 1953.
He is gone but not forgotten
And as dawns another year
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er us,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they will little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.
Sadly missed by Children, Grandchildren and Great Grandchildren.

House Opens Probe Of Airline Crashes

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House Commerce Committee today summoned government officials to receive preliminary reports on last week's air crashes in New York and California that killed 28 persons.

James T. Pyle, Civil Aeronautics Authority administrator, and Oscar Bakke, safety regulations director of the Civil Aeronautics Board, were scheduled to present the reports.

Committee Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark) said so far he knew of no move for the committee to investigate the scene of the crashes at New York City and Pacoima, Calif. He said the committee will decide on "whatever proceedings will be necessary after hearing the reports.

In the New York crash, a Miami-bound Northeast Airlines DC6A plummeted in flames to Rikers Island in New York Harbor Friday seconds after taking off from LaGuardia Field. Twenty persons were killed.

In the California crash, an F-89 jet fighter and a DC7B airliner collided Thursday over a crowded schoolyard at Pacoima during test flights. Eight persons including three school children were killed.

The CAB late Tuesday ordered that all military and civilian test flights after Feb. 19 must be made over water or sparsely - settled areas approved by the government.

Civil test flights heretofore were forbidden over thickly - populated areas or large gatherings of people. But the rule did not apply to military aircraft. It also did not call for specific government designation of test flight areas.

Confusion on Highway 57

ROXBORO, N.C. (UP)—A recent extension of the city limits here has motorists, the city fathers and police confused to say the least.

The extension took one half of Highway 57 into the city while the other side of the road is still in the county.

Motorists entering Roxboro must observe a 35 mile per hour speed limit while those leaving town can travel 55 miles per hour.

Then there is the matter of jurisdiction. The state High Patrol handles the northbound lane while city police look after the southbound lane on the half - mile stretch

"Something will have to be worked out," said City Manager W. F. Timberlake.

Three Labor Unions Told to Clean House

MIAMI BEACH (UP) — Three big labor unions have been ordered to clean house within 90 days or get out of the AFL-CIO. Council Tuesday night accused the unions, with memberships totaling 170,000, of being "dominated, controlled and substantially influenced by corrupt influences."

The council told the three unions they must rid themselves of officials involved in welfare fund abuses in order to remain in the AFL-CIO. The unions denied the accusations and criticized the council action.

The unions are the Laundry Workers International, the Distillery, Rectifying and Wine Workers International, and the Allied Industrial Workers.

The council planned to wind up its conference today. First, however, it will take up several important matters, including a jurisdictional dispute between the Steelworkers Union and the Sheet Metal Workers.

Union leaders indicated, however, that the long-standing jurisdictional feud between craft and industrial unions within the AFL-CIO probably would not be settled at the conference.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said that each of the three accused unions "expressed a desire to cooperate and clean up." The charges grew out of Senate investigations two years ago.

"I hope they will," Meany said, "but I can assure you...if they don't comply completely and fully they will be suspended. That is the unanimous feeling of the council."

In another action Tuesday, the Executive Council upheld Meany's action in expelling Charles Naddeo, executive of a Philadelphia Can Workers local, and suspending the local's other officers. All were accused of improper management of union affairs.

Judge's Name Making Trouble For Printers

DETROIT (UP)— The length of Hamtramck Municipal Judge Joseph A. Lewandowski's last name is making life miserable for Wayne County election officials.

Lewandowski, a candidate for circuit judge, claims the officials were unfair in printing his name in smaller type on the Feb. 18 primary election ballot than that of the other 10 candidates for circuit judge.

"They have practically cut the size of my name in half," Lewandowski said, "and this will make it hard for voters to spot it."

The officials, who must show cause today why they should not be required to reprint the ballots, claim they put Lewandowski's name in smaller type because it couldn't be squeezed into the regular space with the larger type.

Your Health—

Top Men in Business Usually Quite Healthy

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

The big boss of most of our American business firms — the president or chairman of the board — probably is in better physical condition than any of his immediate subordinates. Most likely he's much sharper mentally, too, even though he's a few years older.

There's a good reason for this.

Most senior executives are apt to be overweight by the time they are 60.

Statistically, they have had one or more heart attacks, have high blood pressure and frequently gout or arthritis. An occasional few have or have had cancer.

Although obviously successful and secure economically, the average senior executive is plagued with a moderate amount of disease.

The top man of the firm, on the other hand, probably has become the big boss because of his fairly stern, self-disciplinary mode of living. This same self-discipline accounts for his good health.

Those of you who are not so demanding of yourself frequently ignore the early warnings of disease because you are so absorbed in your work. The big boss watches himself as well as the business.

I'm not drawing these statistics and statements out of the air. They are based on a study by a Chicago physician of some 500 executives who were examined by the Health Research Center of Chicago.

Besides showing the health problems our executives face, the doctor also points out the difficulties they often encounter in obtaining a complete physical examination.

It's just not convenient for most bosses to go to a hospital or clinic for an annual checkup. Many also never seem to find the time to see their personal or company physician.

Establishment of specialized medical facilities with carefully selected doctors trained to do a thorough job is the ideal solution for large group examinations.

But, lacking that, let me urge all of you executives — junior and senior alike — to arrange soon for your physician to give you a complete physical examination.

Autograph Fans In California Rated Wisest

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—When it comes to the business of collecting an autograph, you've got to hand it to California fans, according to Eddie Fisher. This might be the wisest procedure, Fisher added, because if you don't hand it to them, they'll find a way to get it.

Fisher is continually amazed at the tenacity of autograph hounds. He also is very pleased by their attentions, and yet he and his actress-wife, Debbie Reynolds, are interested in some privacy.

Fisher's organized attention is in the form of 6,000 fan clubs with a claimed membership of 250,000, most of them teen-age girls. The youthful singer does all he can to please the clubs which receive a monthly news letter about him and his activities.

Last summer, for example, when shooting began on "Bundle of Joy," many of the members were his guests at RKO studios.

Fisher thinks that the issue of attention vs. privacy really came to a head because of the birth of their baby four months ago. They had a brief period of time to themselves until a fire broke out at their newly rented house in Beverly Hills. Newspapers noted the address.

"We appreciated the fans' interest," Fisher said, "but it got to a point where there was a steady stream of people at the door. The frequent ringing of the bell began to wake up the baby.

Barbero Instigates New Cage Rule

Tom Barbero, veteran basketball official and faculty manager of athletics at Monongahela High, has instigated a new basketball rule which will go into effect next season in over 10,000 high schools and junior colleges across the country. At Barbero's suggestion, the national rules committee has adopted this qualification governing player's shirts: "No player's number shall contain a digit greater than '5' and if a team has two sets of uniforms, even numbers shall be used on the light-colored uniforms and odd numbers on the dark uniforms." . . . To enforce the ruling, a technical foul will be called for failure to comply with the digit requirements.

* * *

In case you haven't guessed, there's a reason for the new rule. Explains Barbero: "With the adoption of this rule it will be much easier for an official to signal with the fingers on one hand the number of the player who committed the foul. I've officiated games where players had numbers like '79' on their shirts. No wonder there were mixups with scorebooks. Another advantage of this rule is that the scorers will have all even numbers for one team and all odd numbers for the other. This will tend to eliminate mistakes." . . . By the way, district schools should consider the new rule when ordering uniforms for next season.

Big Five Dolled in Fancy Outfits

On the subject of uniforms, you should see the fancy togs now being worn by Big Five in the City League. Coach Joe Heath's boys are dolled in yellow trunks and jerseys with black stripes. They also have fancy black warmup jackets, trimmed in yellow . . . Big Five, incidentally, put on quite a show the other night when officials awarded them a forfeit decision after their opponents failed to show. Heath's boys played a "pick-up" game and delighted the fans with some screwy antics. "We're the Monessen Globetrotters," explained one of the Big Five cagers . . . Don Klochak, one-time Bellmar High footballer who later played at North Carolina University before quitting to join the service, was drafted recently by the Los Angeles Rams.

If Pittsburgh Steeler boss Art Rooney goes ahead with plans to name Lowell Perry as an assistant coach, he will be appointing the first negro coach in big league sports. Perry is the former Michigan star who was going great for the Steelers before suffering an untimely injury on Nov. 4. That mishap probably cut short his playing career. Rooney insists there's no "sympathy" involved in his plan to name Perry as a coach. He feels Lowell will do the job . . . Gene Virgilli, Jefferson High's fine halfback, may wind up at a Big Ten school, according to the usual reliable reports.

Gallatin 'Sure Thing' in Soccer

Down through the years, Gallatin has been a "sure thing" in soccer. Last Sunday, the down-river boys completed their second straight undefeated season in the Washington County Soccer League. The feat surprised no one, least of all Peter (Bud) Roman of the Monessen Sport Shop. Roman donates a trophy to the County League champion in memory of his father. Weeks ago he had the huge award engraved, listing Gallatin as the champion . . . There are rumors that Glassport wants out of Section -A in basketball and back in Section 10. Supposedly the Glads are so determined to get their way that they'll play an indipendent schedule if the WPIAL doesn't sanction the move.

Leps Stay In Section 10 Battle

Rostraver High's basketballers showed their old form last night, turning back Hurst, 65-51.

As a result, the Leps kept alive their Section 10 title ambitions. They now trail pace-setting Derry Twp. by a mere half game.

Gus Allen led the Rostraver scoring, tossing in 16 points. Richard Cloherty chipped in with 15.

For the visitors, Jurkowski was high man with 18.

Bolt to Lead

The Leps bolted off to a 16-9 lead in the first period and they stayed in front the rest of the way. Hurst did manage to draw within six points at one stage but the Rostraver boys wasted no time in repadding their advantage.

Rostraver won the Junior Varsity game, too, by a 39-36 score.

Monessen Jayvees Handle Bellmar By 34-23 Score

Monessen's slow-starting Junior Varsity basketballers came to life in time to handle the Bellmar Reserves, 34-23, at the MHS gym last night.

The first period was a slow motion affair, ending in a 3-3 deadlock. In the second period, the Monessen boys got going and they were in front at halftime, 15-6.

Bellmar never caught up after that.

George Murin led the winners with seven points. Carl Osborne had six for the losers.

Di Pasquale Signs Steeler Contract

PITTSBURGH (UP)— Ray DiPasquale, University of Pittsburgh halfback and the Pittsburgh Steelers' 21st draft choice in 1956, has signed to play with the Steelers. He enters the Army at Fort Lee, Va., Feb. 20 for six months duty as a second lieutenant in the Quartermaster Corps and will be discharged in time to join the Steelers for the coming season.

Red Hot Hounds Have no Trouble In Sec. 5 Game

Monessen High's spunky Greyhounds came up with their finest performance of the season last night to swamp outclassed Bellmar, 75-33, before 1248 fans at the MHS gym.

Hitting on 55 per cent of their field goal attempts, the rebounding Hounds had no trouble winning their sixth Section 5 game in eight assignments this season.

They led from start to finish, connecting on their first six tries from the field to build up a 14-4 advantage in the early moment. That uncanny accuracy was in sharp contrast to the poor shooting performance at Brownsville last week when the Hounds made only six field goals in the first three periods.

It was a completely different story against Bellmar. Just about everything the Monessen boys threw ripped through the cords.

Work Hard

The visiting Bellmar lads worked hard the first half and stayed reasonably close with some fine play of their own. But they tired badly in the third period and eventually fell far behind their hot-shooting hosts.

Joe Kurey, 6-0 junior who started the game for Monessen in place of the injured John Bogovich, turned out to be the star. Kurey made 24 points, hitting on 11 fielders in just 14 attempts. He made no less than seven layups.

Maurice Mathieu chipped in with 15 points for the winners.

The Bellmar boys got seven point efforts from Jim Bitonti, Bob Hewitt and Bill Niccolai.

Both teams substituted freely when it became apparent that a rout was in the making. Janoski employed an undergraduate Monessen team through most of the third period. The MHS juniors responded by piling up a 24-4 scoring edge against the tiring visitors.

Jayvees Take Over

In the final period, Jayvees from both sides took over.

The game never was close, with Monessen ahead, 31-19 at intermission. However the Bellmar boys hustled during the first two frames to make it interesting.

The visitors collapsed early in the third period though when the Hounds ran the score to 49-17 in four minutes. From then on, it was just a matter of time.

Statistically the Hounds made 31 of 56 field goal attempts for 55 per cent accuracy. Bellmar connected on 11 of 52 for 21 per cent gunning.

Sportsmen to Stage Banquet on March 5

Hal H. Harrison, noted outdoor writer, will again headline the annual Monessen Sportsmen's Association banquet on Tuesday, March 5, at the First Methodist Church.

Harrison has entertained past banquet audiences with his comments and films on the outdoors. He has another new movie to offer this year.

Entitled "Beyond the Shining Mountains", the film captures much of the beauty and gradeur as well as the many hardships encountered by Lewis and Clark in their epic-making expedition over 150 ytars ago.

Harrison has spent almost two years preparing the movie. He travelled 30,000 miles through 12 western states to complete an historically accurate account of the Lewis and Clark trail.

Exciting Color

Practically all of the wild life recorded in the journals of these two explorers has been photographed in exciting color. Elk, moose, bighorn sheep, grizzly bears, black bears, deer, prong-horn antelope, beavers and prairie dogs are some of the mammals pictures.

Birdlife includes prairie chickens; rare whooping cranes and trumpeter swans; cliff swallows; scissor-tailed flycatchers, hawks and owls.

Highlights of the film are two exciting expeditions planned and executed for the story by Mr. Harrison. One is a pack trip with horses and mules over the rugged Lolo Trail through the Bitterroot Mountains of Idaho; a 100-mile stretch of primitive wilderness that almost defeated the Lewis and Clark Expedition. The second is a three-day boat trip through the Missouri River Canyon and Badlands of Montana. In both of these thrill-packed trips, the audience views magnificient scenery just as it looked 150 years ago.

With the generous assistance of the Historical Society of Montana and similar organizations, Mr. Harrison has been able to present historically accurate scenes and facts. Landmarks from St. Louis, Mo., to Astoria, Ore., are presented with authority.

Five Banquet

Dwon through the years, the Sportsmen's banquet has developed into the biggest event of its kind in the district. Both men and women from all over the Mon Valley attend the annual affair.

Tickets for the 1957 show may be purchased at Monessen Plumbing and Electric or from any member of the Sportsmen's Club.

Clifford P. Myers is banquet chairman.

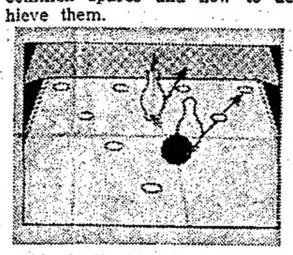
BOWLING

By JOE JANNOTTA

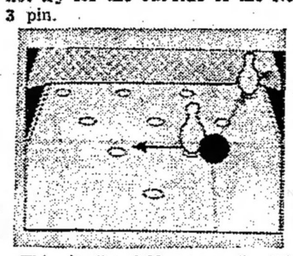
It's surprising how many bowlers actually aren't sure of themselves when they go after spares. By that, I mean they don't know exactly where to deliver the ball to get the best mixing action.

So let us begin considering some common spares and how to achieve them.



This is the 3-5 spare, but the same technique is used when any two pins are left standing at a similar angle.

Always aim your ball into the pocket so as to hit both pins. Do not try for the out-side of the No. 3 pin.



This is the 3-10 spare. In this situation, deliver the ball so as to hit on the inside of the front pin. Do not try for the outside of the No. 3 pin.

On Friday we'll go over more spare possibilities.

Trotters Invade City Tonight

Famed Basketballers Bring Show to MHS Gym Starting at 8:30

Basketball's most famous team — the Harlem Globetrotters — will appear at the Monessen High gym tonight.

Abe Saperstein's "magicians of basketball" will take on the picturesque House of David quint beginning at 9 p. m.

To further spice the evening's fun, four vaudeville acts — travelling with the Trotters — will entertain before and after the game. They will take the spotlight at 8:30.

Fans have come to expect far more than basketball from the Trotters. They also want some clowning. And the Harlem boys never disappoint them.

Thus tonight's attraction will be more of a "show" than a game. Not that the House of David dribblers won't be trying. They have a reputation of their own to uphold.

Lots of Fun

However the Trotters are usually so good that they win with ease. And win or lose, they manage to sneak in some plain old foolishness.

Every member of the Harlem cast stands 6-3 or better. It's no wonder, then, that the Trotters haven't been beaten yet this season.

The House of David dribblers should provide some real opposition, though. They have quite a few talented skyscrapers of their own.

The team is colorful in its own right. Sponsored by the Israelite cult of Benton Harbor, Mich., the team has toured the country for years. Members of the cult grow their hair and beards long and live on a vegetarian diet.

Side Shows, Too

The side-show attractions tonight also appear interesting.

A feature will be a table tennis exhibition between Ted Bourne and Bob Anderson, both former champions. They spice their act with comedy.

The Darlells will feature Wild West Lassoing while Don Philips will operate a unicycle and Mike Pickering will do some fancy juggling.

Many fine seats are still available and may be secured tonight at the gym.

Promoting the show are the Monessen Knights of Columbus.

Here are the rosters for the two teams:

GLOBETROTTERS — Andrew Shepard, 6-4; Willie Cerf, 6-6; Norman Lee, 6-4; Stan Burrell, 6-4; Charles Holton, 6-3; Bob Williams, 6-7; Oris Hill, 6-7; and Henry Kean, 6-3.

HOUSE OF DAVID — Don Tamulis, 6-3; Al Ingber, 5-10; Jerry Schumacher, 6-5; Bob Moroski, 6-7; Mel Sheary, 6-1; Ed Greicius, 6-3; Jim Keller, 6-5; Travis Barker, 6-5; Tom Gatzek, 5-11; George Anderson, 5-10.

Nine Directors Elected at Midget Football League Session

Nine members at large were elected to the Board of Directors of the Monessen Midget Football League last night during the annual election meeting.

Selected to serve for the 1957 term were John Mallino, Harold Wilkins, Harry McCraw, Louis Kichinko, Carl Laszewski, Nello Tineri, Larry Pfeister, Peter Roman and Dan Salotti.

Eight of those men served on the Board last year. The only newcomer is Tineri.

Eight additional directors serve by virtue of their standing in the community. They are:

Other Directors

Dr. Joseph Pallone, superintendent of schools; Stephen Pfeister, chairman of the Recreation Board; Hugo Parente, mayor of Monessen; John Lancas, president of the School Board; Charles Hagerstrand, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Sam Pantaleo, juvenile officer; Armand Niccolai, high school football coach; and Allen Kline, representing the Daily Independent.

The Directors will meet later to select officers for the coming season.

It was decided during the meeting to seek School Board approval to operate the concession stands at Memorial Stadium again in 1957.

The league will make the formal request in a letter to the School Board, seeking action at next Tuesday's Board meeting. It was also decided to ask for School Board permission to erect a permanent concession stand at the Stadium in return for the concession privileges.

Read Reports

Year-end reports were read by secretary Wilkins, treasurer Mallino and concessions chairman McCraw.

The league voted to transfer $500 from the concession fund into the general league treasury. Last season, the concession stands at Memorial Stadium netted about $680 for the League.

Last night's meeting was held in the office of School Superintendent Dr. Joseph Pallone.

Car Club to Stage Rally Sun.

Barring fresh snowfall in excess of three inches, the Blue Ridge Mountain Sports Car club will hold its second annual Soow Shoe rally starting at 1:30 Sunday afternoon.

M. T. Sherid, Greensburg, chairman of the event, announced that the run will start just north of Mt. Pleasant at the intersection of routes 819 and 981. He will be assisted by Arthur W. Schaller and Dr. F. D. Edgar, Jr., also of Greensburg.

Announcement of the results of the January event was postponed to the March meeting, according to Activities S. M. Murman, Connellsville, pending a special meeting of the committee in charge. Heavy snowfall during the event obliterated a number of markers, making completion of the run impossible.

Marion Juniors Trip Fallowfield

Marion Junior High nipped Fallowfield, 33-32, in Section 3 play yesterday at the losers floor.

The Generals won despite poor foul shooting. They made just five of 21 tries while Fallowfield clicked on 18 of 33.

However the Marion boys tossed in 14 fielders to seven for the losers. Ron Coates led the way with 11 points.

It was John Kasuda, though, who tossed in a pair of fouls in the final period to provide the winning points.

Vernon Juniors Nip Carroll in Thriller, 37-36

Vernon Junior High turned back Carroll Twp., 37-36, yesterday to stay tied with Rostraver for the Section 3 lead.

The Puppies appear at Rostraver tomorrow in a game which might very well decide the 1957 title.

Yesterday's win over Carroll Twp. was an exciting affair. The visitors tallied a basket seconds after the whistle sounded to end the game.

That touched off a mild dispute.

Ron Feher was high for Vernon with 12 points. Bob Johnson led the visitors with 14.

The Puppies had a hard time getting started. They trailed, 8-0, at the end of the first period. However they got going in the second period and eventually moved in front in the third stanza. It was nip and tuck from then on.

Pittsburgh Steel Observes 'Safety Month' at Plants

This is "Safety Month" at Pittsburgh Steel and the company is making an all-out effort to reduce accidents.

Company and union officials have pledged their support of the project in the war to make February accident-free at all of Pittsburgh Steel's plants.

The challenge is staggering. About 10,000 men and women will be aiming to work more than 1½ million man hours without a lost-time accident.

The 1956 accident rate at Pittsburgh Steel — even though it is declining year by year — is still above that of the average for the entire steel industry.

During the 12 months ending December 31, there were 7.62 lost-time accidents for every million man hours worked. The year before, accident frequency was 9.11 accidents per million man hours.

That's why increasing stress is being laid on safety performance on a company-wide basis.

To illustrate what safety means to Pittsburgh Steel workers, the company publication, "The Keystone" is devoting its entire issue this month to "Safety."

In it is a breakdown on what one day a year lost because of injury means to the average worker.

Lost salary would have amounted to some $290 over a 13 year period — the length of time the "average" worker has been with the company.

This would have been more than half his present savings or the price of a stove, two easy chairs or his TV set.

The company's medical program would have taken care of his medical expenses. But so far the policy hasn't been devised which covers pain or inconvenience.

Repeated accidents would have destroyed his mental attitude and perhaps blocked a rise through wage classifications.

The "average" Pittsburgh Steel worker is married, with three children. He has drawn 33 paychecks without deductions for needless time lost. The result:

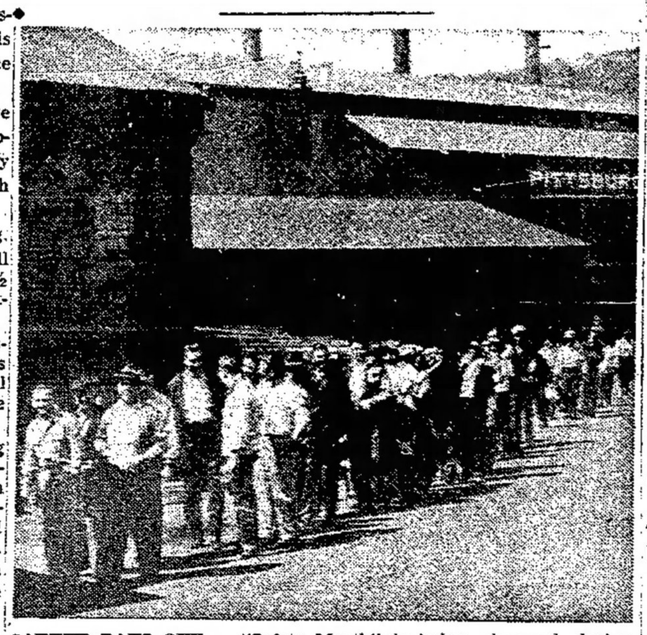
He's buying a home that costs $10,500. His $7,500 mortgage averages to payments of $59 monthly.

He owes payments on a television set and electric washing machine. But his stove, refrigerator, furniture and two radios are paid.

He owns a medium-priced car, about four years old.

He has seen his savings account reach the $500 mark. Besides company insurance, he also carried about $2,000 insurance on members of the family.

But, "The Keystone" points out, all these things would never have been obtained if the "average" steelworker had not been careful at his job.



SAFETY PAYS OFF — "Safety Month" is being observed during the month of February by Pittsburgh Steel Co. employes. By observing safety rules, the worker can insure himself steady paychecks and steady buying power as these men show lining up for "payday."

More Unkown Soldiers for Arlington Burial

WASHINGTON (UP) — Two more unknown soldiers—one from World War II and one from the Korean war — will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery on Memorial Day, May 30, 1958.

The Defense Department said Monday Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson had approved the burial and plans for the selection and return of the unknown soldiers from overseas.

Plans for modifying the tomb of the unknown soldier of World War I still are tentative, however. Proposals now under consideration call for two additional crypts in the plaza floor at the present tomb.

The Defense Department said there is now no intention of changing the famed inscription: "Here rests in honored glory an American soldier known but to God."

Plan Hearing to Determine Road Relocation Job

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Highways Department will hold a public hearing in Mamont Feb. 13 to determine the economic effect on that Westmoreland County community of a proposed relocation of Route 69.

The project involves construction of 3.69 miles of the route in Washington Twp., northwest of its present location and bypassing Mamont. Construction would begin near a small concrete bridge over a branch of Thorn Run and continue to a point on the present Route 69 near its intersection with Township Road 64700.

The project also involves construction of a grade separation to carry Route 228 over the relocated Route 69, a reinforced concrete arch bridge over Poke Run and two prestressed concrete bridges over branches of Thorn Run.

The hearing will open at 8 p.m. at the Mamont School.

Hiroshima Deaths Blamed on the Bomb

HIROSHIMA, Japan (UP)—Two natives of Hiroshima died here today of diseases which Japanese newspapers blamed on the atomic bomb 12 years ago.

One was Kanji Tanikawa, 56, who was less than half a mile away from the bomb blast center on Aug. 6, 1945.

The other victim, 61-year-old Toraichi Yamada, entered the city on the day after the bomb fell, according to newspapers here.

Makes Pitch For Schoolrooms

WASHINGTON (UP) — The administration told Congress today it must spend $1.3 billion for new schoolrooms without delay or face the prospect of handicapping the nation's school children permanently with "inadequate education."

It said the issue should be decided on its own merits without Congress getting embroiled in a dispute over racial segregation.

The administration plea was submitted by Marion B. Folsom, secretary of health, education, and welfare, in testimony before a House Education subcommittee, headed by Rep. Clevelan M. Bailey (D-WVA).

Authority Must Give Fair Notice of Meeting

PITTSBURGH (UP)—An Allegheny County judge, ruling on a McKeesport condemnation case, held today that a public authority must give fair notice of when and where it will conduct its business

Judge Henry X. O'Brien granted an injunction halting the Parking Authority of the City of McKeesport from seizing property owned by Dr. Arthur H. Hartman for use as a public parking facility.

O'Brien held that by meeting in a private club dining room when it adopted the condemnation resolution last March 18, the McKeesport authority failed to satisfy the requirements of a public meeting and the action taken there was invalid.

Hartman, who operates a state licensed private hospital, uses the property as a private parking lot and made a test case of the authority's right to take his property.

"In our form of government there is a very sensible and apparent reason for providing that certain meetings of governmental bodies should be open to the public," O'Brien said in his ruling. "That is so persons may not be divested of their legal rights without having an opportunity to state their position and know the nature of the proceedings"

O'Brien said it should not be argued that "a meeting is open to the public merely because a member of the public could attend, where the public had no way of knowing about the meeting."

"It is the decision of the court, therefore, that the term 'open to the public,' as used in the authorities statute, comprehends not only that a member of the public may attend as a matter of right, but also that there be adequate means provided of notifying the public of the time and place of the meeting."

The McKeesport authority, by meeting in a private club, did not do this, O'Brien said.

Armed Forces Are Short on Nuclear Weapons

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UP) — More power is packed in the U. S. atomic stockpile than was ever used in war—but the armed forces are a long way from having all the nuclear weapons they want.

This fact was highlighted again in testimony Tuesday before a Senate Armed Services Committee task force by Assistant Army Secretary Frank H. Higgins and Lt. Gen. Carter B. Magruder.

The deficiency is not in A-bombs and H-bombs big enough to wipe out targets ranging in size from an airport to a mammoth city. There are enough of those—and their number is growing—to destroy most targets worthy of them in Russia.

Small Weapons Lacking

The deficiency is in small, so-called tactical atomic weapons—weapons designed for every special purpose known to warfare from sinking an enemy submarine to knocking down an enemy bomber.

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) said at the hearing that he had "very startling" information about "the lack of production of small atomic weapons."

Magruder agreed it would be "three to five years" before the Army has enough tactical atomic weapons to reduce use of conventional ammunition in a war by as much as 25 per cent.

Higgins said equipping the Army with small atomic weapons is "progressing very nicely," but he added that it is "largely a development program, still."

It is a fact that actual production of atomic weapons is at an all-time high. The production pace jumped so fast in the past six months that the Atomic Energy Commission has had to project new expansions of its weapons manufacturing plant.

AEC Cites Needs

But it still isn't turning out atomic artillery shells, say, at the production rate of World War II ordnance plants. It still isn't producing tactical atomic weapons by the tens of thousands.

There obviously has been disagreement among members of the AEC as to the relative emphasis that ought to be put on big bombs for the Strategic Air Command and smaller weapons for, say, Army troops.

Commissioner Thomas E. Murray said last April 21 "very small" atomic weapons should be manufactured in the "tens of thousands." Obviously, when he said that, they weren't. He made the same proposal just last Sept. 21, and, in effect, repeated it last Nov. 10.

Murray's point was, and is, that the big bombs are big enough for their purpose, which is deterring aggression on a global scale. What's needed now, he believes, is enough smaller weapons to make America supreme on the battlefield in a "limited war" as well as in any exchange of knock-out blows against cities.

By "very small" Murray apparently means weapons considerably less potent than the A-bomb that destroyed Hiroshima in 1945. That bomb loosed violence equal to 15,000 tons of exploding TNT. The AEC already has tested weapons equivalent to less than 1,000 tons of TNT. They are midgets compared to the biggest U.S. H-bomb yet tested—a 15 million tonner exploded in 1954.

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP)—One of the hardest working persons in our town is a Harlem-born gent who started off toward juvenile delinquency but was rescued by an intense desire for the stage.

This tornado of energy now is 31 years old, stands 5-feet-6, weighs a hefty 121 pounds, drinks a case and a half of cream soda a week, works constantly at professional photography, makes phonograph records, plays benefits, and practices the Old West fast-draw so assiduously that he can get a .45 drawn from the hip, cocked, and fired in one-half second.

Between these activities he appears six nights and two matinees a week in a Broadway show in which he: Sings, dances, plays trumpet, drums, bass, and guitar, does impressions and impersonations and a bit of dramatic acting.

He Wastes No Time

Three years ago, he lost an eye in an automobile wreck. It slowed him up for only 11 weeks, during convalescence. Then he plunged into work as hard as ever.

His name is Sammy Davis Jr. When his show, "Mr. Wonderful," closes this month, after a run of a little more than a year, he is scheduled for a two-day vacation before starting night club work. "Mr. Wonderful" is a two and one-half hour show, and Davis is on stage for an hour and 40 minutes of it.

Sammy did not go immediately into show business. He lay around the house, doing nothing and earning no money, until he was two and a half years old. Then his father and uncle, who were headlining at a Philadelphia theater, entered him in an amateur contest there.

He sang "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead, You Rascal You," enunciating clearly and hitting every note. He won, and he's been winning audiences rather regularly ever since.

Headed For Movies

The Davis show-business ability has been so headlined that his photography career gets little public attention. He has been accepted by the Society of Magazine Photographers, top grade organization.

His fast-draw study grew out of a hobby—collecting guns. He has about 75 single-action Colts, many of them with papers vouching for their rarity and authenticity.

Sammy is headed for the movies next fall. His first picture will be "The Jazz Train" with Frank Sinatra. Then, he is interested in doing the life of Henry Armstrong, the three-weight boxing champ.

He was asked what, of all the varied possibilities for the future, he wanted to do most. "Get some sleep," he replied.

The state of Vermont was an independent nation for 14 years, complete with its own coinage, postal system and army, before its admission to the Union in 1791.
